RUSH STOPS EUCHARISTIC PROGRAM

VAST THRONG SURGES ON FIELD AS PAPAL LEGATE ENDS MASS FOR 200,000

Chicago, June 21.—Throngs of worshippers, intent on approaching as near as possible to the altar and the prelates, halted the program of the first general session of the twenty-eighth international Eucharistic Congress of the Catholic Church today. The remainder of the day's program was abandoned.

The giving of Communion had barely ended, with John Cardinal Bonzano, papal legate, celebrating the solemn pontifical mass and the papal blessing had been imparted, when the rush came.

Fifty extra policemen were called to help restore order. Special guards formed a human chain to escort the cardinals and other church dignitaries from the altar. Radios were also employed in urging the crowd to clear the field.

BRIDE LOSES FOOT ON WAY TO BUY TROUSSEAU

Starting for Boston to buy the trousseau for her approaching marriage, 23-year-old Concetta Verrillo of Pearl street, Malden, was run down by an inbound Fellsway car today near the Fellsway and Malden street, and lost her right foot as the wheels of the car pinioned her.

The girl was taken to the Malden Hospital, where Dr. Wilson E. Hunt amputated the crushed member at the ankle. Despite the disfiguration, the girl's fiance, Arthur Pittore, of 104 Oakland street, Malden, says: "I will marry her just the same."

With her cousin, Mrs. Andrew DeMarco, and Mrs. Mary Alessandro, who was to be matron of honor, the girl was crossing the Fellsway today preparatory to boarding a street car. Both Mrs. DeMarco and Mrs. Alessandro crossed the tracks safely.

The girl, who was last, started to run, but the car struck her and her right leg slipped under the wheels. The driver of the car was Joseph Amerault of Wilmington.

SAMBURSKY PLEADS GUILTY, MAY GET LIFE

John Robert Sambursky, acquitted last week of the murder of Officer Frank Comeau, pleaded guilty of robbery while armed and of the larceny of an automobile before Judge Fosdick in the Superior Criminal Court today.

Sambursky may suffer life imprisonment. Assistant District Attorney Burke declared that he would not ask for sentence at the present time, and it is thought that Sambursky may be a government witness at the trial of the other two boys.

MONTE'S DEPORTATION IS THREATENED BY U. S.

A move looking toward deporting "Count Paul Anatole Monte," or Nicholas Wiseman as he was christened, was taken today, it was learned at the Federal Building.

The move took the form of arrangements for a conference between immigration officials and District Attorney O'Brien, and the understanding is that "moral turpitude" will enter into the discussion.

If Monte is adjudged to be an undesirable alien, he will be scheduled

Boston Pilgrims Play Big Part in Chicago

By JAMES WALSH
(Staff Correspondent of the Boston Evening American with Boston Pilgrims to Eucharistic Congress.)

James Walsh.

Chicago, Ill., June 21.—Boston and Massachusetts played a prominent part in today's program for the great Eucharistic Congress. The official delegation from the Boston archdiocese was conveyed to Soldiers Field in Grant Park early this morning, and took part in the inspiring spectacle when 60,000 children sang the Mass of the Angels, begun at 10 o'clock by His Eminence John Cardinal Bonzano, papal legate to the congress.

For two hours before the mass was begun several bands played as the horde of people poured into the huge stadium.

The setting was a spectacular one. On a raised platform covered with a crimson-colored carpet, reached by 150 steps, also covered with carpeting, a

MISTRIAL IS DECLARED IN 'TAKE THE RAP' CASE

Within one hour from the opening of Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today, Judge Wilfred Gray had declared a mistrial in the case of Attorney Nathan Ullian, charged with bribing two policemen in the so-called rap cases, and a new trial had been started.

In declaring the mistrial Judge Gray exonerated a lawyer-politician and a juror, but suggested the district attorney's office investigate the alleged statement of a policeman under indictment in connection with another take-the-rap case.

This officer, according to Judge Gray, was quoted as having said a juror on the panel, who was named, would "go through" for the defendant, and take care of two or three other jurors.

The court also issued a warning to jurors and lawyers against the appearance of evil, and declared that while he had been charitable in this case, if it should occur again "the coincidence would be too remarkable to be overlooked."

BEGIN SUMMER WITH A FROST

A fourth June frost settled over Middlesex County lowlands today, the first day of Summer, as the mercury dipped to 39, while Cape Cod shivered in an unseasonable cool snap that sent the temperature down to 28 and threatened to nip the cranberry crop.

Middlesex County escaped with slight damage. Concord reported a temperature of 39, the lowest in the county. Today's frost came on the heels of a heavier one Sunday. The first frost on June 4, was followed on June 17 by a killing frost which visited many sections of the county. Hanson on the Cape had a temperature of 28.

Cloudy skies are forecast for tomorrow with rain tomorrow night or Wednesday morning.

AGREE TO BUILD UP AIR SERVICE

Washington, June 21 (A.P.).—Senate and House conferees have reached an agreement on the last of the bills for strengthening the air service recommended by the President's air board.

This is a measure calling for the construction of 1,800 new planes for the army during the next five years and creating the office of Assistant Secretary of War to have charge of the reorganized air corps.

A similar bill affecting the navy, but authorizing two new dirigibles twice the size of the destroyed Shenandoah, is before the President.

6 BARRACKS LICKED UP; 5TH AND 13TH INFANTRY, U. S. A., LOSE EFFECTS

Starting from an undetermined cause in the barracks of D Company, Fifth U. S. Infantry, fire swept through Camp Devens at Ayer today, wiping out six barracks before it was brought under control.

Fanned by a high east wind, the flames raced from wooden building to wooden building, while exploding cartridges, left in their quarters by the enlisted men, added to the danger of fighting the blaze.

The fire had gained considerable headway when it was discovered and the military fire fighters were forced to call for help. A general alarm was turned in when it was thought the entire camp would be swept, and help was summoned from Ayer, Shirley and Harvard.

After nearly an hour's struggle the blaze was brought under control, having been confined to the quarters of the 5th and 13th Infantry outfits, both of the regular army.

The burned area is near the Quartermaster's Depot, some distance from the district occupied by National Guard troops and the Citizens' Military Training Camp.

So fast did the flames race through the dry barracks that the majority of the enlisted occupants lost all their equipment and personal possessions.

FIN. COM. PROBE CITY LAND DEAL OF $90,000

A real estate deal whereby the city of Boston is to acquire for $90,000 for schoolhouse purposes, one-third of a tract purchased last year for $93,000, is said to be under investigation by the Finance Commission.

The land in question lies in the rear of the residence of former Mayor James M. Curley, and according to the records of the Registry of Deeds, is in the name of Thomas A. Ryan of Brighton, a city employe.

On the Assessing Department payroll Ryan is rated as a special clerk and tax examiner with a salary of $1,900.

The records show that the tract in question was part of 379,000 square feet, purchased a year ago from the Charles Curtis estate for $93,000. It is located in the Agassiz-Bowditch school district, and sometime before its purchase wisacres who figured a new schoolhouse was in prospect, tried to obtain the land without success.

The Finance Commission has found that the 144,000 square feet which the city is planning to purchase for $90,000, is in the rear of the tract, and fronts on an unfinished thoroughfare, thereby increasing the value of the remaining 235,000 square feet, which also stands in Ryan's name. The land is bounded by Moraine street, Lochstead and Pond View avenues and Center street.

FULLER COUNCILLOR IN GOO GOO ROW WITH COP

A summons issued by District Attorney O'Brien kept Charles L. Burrill of the Governor's Council and former State Treasurer cooling his heels in the district attorney's office for four hours today, and it was a very mysterious matter.

Whether the summons was the outcome of an altercation declared to have taken place in the Good Government Association headquarters between Burrill and Policeman George H. McCaffrey of O'Brien's office no one except Dame Rumor would say.

Burrill criticised O'Brien during the quarrel, according to J. A. Desmond, assistant secretary of the Goo Goo office, where McCaffrey's son "Junior" is secretary.

As the necessary opposing factor in the reported dispute, McCaffrey, senior, defended the efficiency of the district attorney until the men are said to have almost come to blows.

"Somebody" tattled to the district attorney, according to the understanding at the court house, but oddly enough, nobody could guess who.

McCaffrey, senior, according to Desmond, had gone to Good Government headquarters to see his son, when Burrill walked in and the skirling began.

The Governor's Councillor appeared at the district attorney's office today and sat there all morning, while O'Brien busied himself with the "rap" case.

SOME ONE suggested to Henry Ford that the automobile eventually would be mechanically perfect and beyond improvement. Ford's excellent reply was: "No, there is nothing permanent in the world except change."

The German poet put it: "Nichts ist dauernd als der Wechsel, nichts bestaendig als der Tod." (Only change is enduring, only death is permanent.)

EVERY POSITIVE statement is dangerous. A wise agnostic said: "I affirm nothing, not even that I affirm nothing." Twice two are four, no matter what Einstein may say later on. Two right angles equal any triangle. No change there. And death is no more "permanent" than tomorrow. It is only another day. Ford says: "I am optimistic, because I believe people generally know what is wrong." That is wisdom and original.

dren who took part in the mass were safely ushered from the field when the crush came.

The abandoned program consisted of addresses by Cardinal Von Faulhaber of Munick, Germany, Archbishop Daniel Mannix, of Melbourne, Australia, and ex-Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts.

200,000 ATTEND MASS.

Grant Park, on the lakefront, where the mass was held, was blocked with crowds, and Michigan Boulevard, cleared of its ordinary traffic, was jammed for nearly two miles by the disersing thousands.

The big open air mass was attended by 200,000 persons, including twelve cardinals and hundreds of other high churchmen.

The mass was said by Cardinal Borzano. Except on the roofs of the peristyles on either side of the vast extent of Soldiers Field, every foot of standing room within sight of the golden-topped outdoor altar was packed with spectators. Below in the field, in front of the altar, stretched a long expanse of white—the choir of 60,000 school children assembled to sing the "Mass of the Angels."

THOUSANDS OF NUNS.

To the west side of the altar were thousands of nuns, their mass of black costumes set off with white capes under black veils.

Fifteen minutes after the scheduled starting time, the police had been unable to break through the mass of humanity packed around the clergy's entrance.

The altar, on a great green platform fifty feet above the field, was overarched by a baldachino of red and gold more than 125 feet high, topped by a crucifix. Behind the altar, at right and left, a huge American flag stretched in the breeze.

ON THRONE OF GOLD.

Flanking the altar were the thrones of eleven cardinals, each with a red kneeling bench facing the Eucharistic throne at the centre of the altar.

The throne of the papal legate, under an arched canopy of velvet and gold, was on a dais at the right of the altar.

The march on the stadium which began at an early hour continued with ever-swelling lines of humanity until after 11 o'clock, when all roads leading to the field were closed more than half a mile from the gates with many who had gained admission as early as 5 o'clock more than half a mile from the altar.

Several blocks behind the altar, the roof of the Field Museum was fringed with spectators.

PLANES CIRCLE IN AIR.

Flying high above the field, but not directly over it, were airplanes with occupants trying to obtain a better view of the picturesque spectacle. Other adventurous sightseers were risking their lives climbing the metal supports of the electric light towers to get near the altar.

A police squad struggled for half an hour at the clergy gate before a lane three feet wide could be cut through. The purple-clad bishops then filed slowly into the field.

The crowd greeted the procession with reverence, all who could find room falling to their knees.

Assistants at the mass were the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Francis A. Rempe of St. Clement's Church, Chicago; the Rt. Rev. George Waring, New York; Rt. Rev. Timothy Dempsey, St. Louis; Rt. Rev. William Foley, Chicago, and Rt. Rev. Peter Quealy, Brooklyn, N. Y.

TRUMPETS SOUND SIGNAL.

The trumpeters, far in front of the great altar, gave the first signal that the cardinal legate was approaching, and then from the sanctuary came a peal of response from a huge invisible organ.

As the legate came down the field a wave of handclapping rolled before him, but as he passed each of the massed sections the crowd knelt silently with bowed heads to receive the pontifical blessing.

Following the legate the eleven other cardinals approached the altar, each attended by a group of papal chamberlains in red military uniforms and white plumed helmets.

Amid cheering from all sides Cardinal Bonzano, his long scarlet robes whirling in the breeze, mounted the steps toward the altar, pausing midway to kneel in prayer. He proceeded then to the side and was seated under a red and gold canopy.

The sky darkened constantly and just before the mass began the first misty harbinger of rain dropped as Cardinal Bonzano approached the altar.

MASS SAID IN RAIN.

The children's choir then begain the "Mass of the Angels."

"Kyrie Eleison," a cry for mercy, were the first words voiced from the huge chorus.

As the officiating prelates approached the altar, a canvas screen was moved to the west side of the sanctuary for protection against the raging wind. The rain was very light but the wind was so strong that eight priests were required to hold up the wind protector while the service was in progress.

A day of solemn service and pageantry, with more than 1,000,000 persons attending masses in Chicago's more than 200 Catholic churches, inaugurated the congress Sunday.

beautiful baldachino, similar to the one in the great basilica of St. Peter's in Rome, had been erected.

It had for a background the Museum of Natural History. A splendid episcopal throne for the presiding cardinal also had been erected, and surrounding it, in a sort of square, were similar thrones for the visiting cardinals.

Cardinal O'Connell occupied his throne with Monsignors Haberlin and Splaine as his chaplains of honor.

Over the greensward of Soldiers Field brown benches were placed in position for the children, who sang the mass, and for all who could attend. It is estimated that nearly 200,000 were present at the spectacle.

The Rt. Rev. Thomas Louis Heylan, D. D., Bishop of Namur, Belgium, president of the permanent committee of International Eucharistic Congresses, presided.

BROADCAST THE MASS.

The impression made on the great throng will linger for a long time. The great chorus of sweet young voices, augmented by the more mature singing of thousands of nuns as well as the vibrant tones of a huge organ, were carried for miles with the aid of eighteen amplifiers.

Guyette, knight commander of the Holy Sepulchre and knight commander of the Order of St. Gregory, and Mrs. Guyette, of Lowell; Humphrey O'Sullivan, knight of St. Gregory, also of Lowell; James P. The choir of 60,000 voices was under the direction of Professor Otto A. Singenberger, director of music at the Seminary at St. Mary of the Lake, Mundelein.

The sermon was preached by the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, D. D., Archbishop of Baltimore. Following the mass there was an address by Michael Cardinal Von Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich.

MONTE WEEPS BEFORE WIFE

for a trip to Canada, his last country before he his the United States.

As this turn in Monte's affairs was taking place, he was facing his wife in the detention pen at Superior Court, where, weeping like a child, he asked her forgiveness.

Previously today he had pleaded not guilty to an indictment charge of deserting, failing to support and abandoning his wife and child, and had been held in $5,000 bail by Judge Fosdick.

He was arraigned as plain Nicholas Wiseman. The indictment contained two counts of abandonment, two counts of non-support and two of desertion.

A warrant for the "count's" arrest on a charge of larceny, in connection with the passing of a worthless check on a Boston concern, has been turned over to Station 2. The complaint char [illegible] check was given in payment for a wrist watch.

The dapper figure of the "Count" loomed in sharp contrast to the other prisoners in the detention pen. His debonair manner was unchanged and, as usual, he dressed the part.

Monte was still in the prisoner's pen when his wife, Mrs. Esther Wiseman of Winthrop, entered the courtroom. The moment was dramatic. She went directly to the cage and almost instantly the serenity faded from the Count's face. Tears streamed down his face and he made no effort to check them. For fifteen minutes he pleaded with the woman who is the mother of his eight-year-old daughter Miriam.

When Mrs. Wiseman came from the detention room she told the story of the Count's tearful plea. "He cried and begged me to forgive him," she said, but the plea failed to move her. She didn't know what she would do, she said, she had seen him cry so many times before.

"He has told me," she continued, "that I was the only woman that he ever loved, and then he would turn around and do something to hurt me. He has cried over me at times so that it would seem that there wasn't another tear left. I really don't know what I will do."

Attorney Berman, who said he was a friend of the family, expressed the hope that the "Count" and his wife might be reconciled.

Trying to Save Carbarn Slayer for Mother's Sake

FRIENDS OF HEINLEIN TO MEET

Counsel for Condemned Men Plan to Make a Plea for Life Imprisonment

Actuated by sympathy for his mother and a determination to save Edward J. Heinlein, one of the three condemned carbarn thugs, from the electric chair, friends and neighbors are to stage an unusual meeting tonight at the Heinlein home, No. 5 Arlington court, Brighton.

Ways and means will be discussed for the most effective action to save Heinlein from the ignominy of suffering the death penalty. Tonight's meeting will be the opening gun in the last-ditch fight to be waged in behalf of the trio sentenced to die in the week of August 8 for the murder of Ferneau, night watchman at the Waltham carbarn, in a hold-up on October 4.

John J. McLaughlin, father of two children, and John J. Devereaux, who admitted he shot Ferneau in self-defence, he said, are the other two condemned men.

No step has yet been taken by their counsel. Attorney John J. Higgins, former district attorney for Middlesex County, said today counsel for the three prisoners expected to meet soon and decide on a course of action.

A petition for clemency, in the form of a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment, will be filed, but none of the lawyers would predict today when such a petition would be presented.

Attorney Charles D. Driscoll, counsel for Heinlein, said:

"Letters are coming in at the home of Heinlein's parents in Brighton. Prominent citizens have interested themselves in the case. Demand for early action has been so great that it was decided to hold a meeting at the Heinlein home tonight."

IGNORED BY MAYOR, 3 RESIGN

Historic Sites Commissioners Page, Dowd, Lourie Render Board Powerless

Three members of the commission for marking historic sites have resigned, it was revealed today at City Hall, because of alleged indifference to the committee on the part of Mayor Nichols. The committee was appointed a year ago by former Mayor Curley.

The three members who have filed resignations are: Walter Gilman Page, chairman; Judge Thomas H. Dowd of Municipal Court and Judge David A. Lourie of Superior Court. Judge Dowd said that pressure of business compelled him to hand in his resignation.

As a result of the three resignations, the two remaining members of the commission are powerless to act.

IGNORED BY MAYOR.

Mr. Page complained that the Mayor ignored the commission, turning over all matters to George H. Johnson, secretary of the Mayor's industrial and publicity bureau, and directly in charge of all municipal celebrations.

The first serious break between the Mayor and the committee resulted over the question of a tablet for marking the site of evacuation of British troops at Long Wharf. Chairman Page and the judges passed on the design which was approved by the art commission. The Mayor, according to Page, paid no attention to the commission and refused to sign the necessary contracts.

Mayor Nichols said he did not know about the resignation, which have been filed for several weeks. He said "it was one of those matters which had been held in abeyance since he took office."

NOT IN HARMONY.

He had treated the committee, he said, without prejudice and with no disrespect and announced that he would appoint a time for a conference with the members of the committee to thresh the matter out. He defended his position in the matter of the evacuation site tablet, saying that he understood that the committee itself was not in harmony on the matter.

The remaining members of the commission are Walter K. Watkins and Edward W. McGlenen, both historians. The committee was appointed in connection with plans for Boston Tercentennial celebration to be held in 1930.

ON JAIL REPENTENCE SEAT HE SAYS THEY'VE "DESERTED" HIM
The wife and little daughter of "Count" Paul Anatole Monte (Wiseman) did not go to the Charles street jail to greet him and he said he felt "quite deserted." They live in Winthrop, the "Count" himself, while week-ending as a guest of the law. He faces charges of wife-desertion, but contends that the deserts he is getting are not just deserts. He has had a picturesque career recently.

BROOKLINE GIRL WEDS RUSSIAN EXILE

Only Select Few Admitted to Witness the Wedding Knot Tied in Dual Ceremony

Wedding bells rang today in Brookline for Miss Constance Cunningham when she became the bride of Vladimir Alexander Perrzoff, descendant of a long line of Russian nobility.

The ceremony was at the Church of our Saviour, Longwood.

A dual ceremony was performed simultaneously, the Episcopal service by Bishop Lawrence and his assistants, and the service of the Russian Orthodox-Greek Catholic Church by Prince Drigorieff. The bishop is the bride's uncle.

Assisting the bishop were the Rev. Henry E. Ogilvy, rector of the church, the Rev. Frederick Lawrence and a Russian prince, Prince Drigorieff.

Neither the bride nor the bridegroom was attended.

Only close friends and the relatives of the bridegroom and the bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cunningham of No. 135 Ivy street, Brookline, were permitted attendance at the ceremony.

The Cunninghams are included in

WARNS LAWYER AT GARAGE HEARING

A gruff warning, "Don't spring any special agreement stuff on me," to Attorney Alexander Whiteside from Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote featured a hearing today at the State House on an appeal from the decision of Fire Marshal George C. Neal revoking two permits issued for an eight-story garage in the Park square district.

Whiteside, counsel for the St. James Building Corporation and the Shearer Real Estate Trust, petitioners for the garage, was outlining the scope of the testimony "by special agreement" when the commissioner's ire became aroused.

"Don't spring any special agreement stuf on me," Foote interrupted sharply.

Attorney Elbridge R. Anderson, counsel for the Park Square Real Estate Trust, said the new owners of the Park Square Building are opposed to the garage.

Whiteside contended the sale of the building was made after the permits were issued and during the hearings before the fire marshal, and the new owners had no legal standing in the proceedings.

"They knew an appeal had been taken, though," pointed out Commissioner Foote.

Colonel Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Transit Commission and acting fire commissioner, declared he "thought the site favorable" for a garage.

Whiteside quoted the special commission on the intermediate highway as favoring "garages on the outskirts of business sections." Sullivan was a member of the commission.

4 RESCUED AT WINTHROP FIRE

Four children were carried to safety by two citizens early today when fire broke out in the two and one-half-story structure at No. 243 Shirley avenue, Winthrop.

Flames were pouring from the attic of the building when Irving Sampson of Wave Way sounded the alarm and ran to awaken the sleeping families.

Baffled by locked doors, Sampson, with the aid of Harry Goldberg, milkman, hastily produced a house ladder, which was thrown to the second floor. Mounting to the window, Sampson ran through the rooms awakening everyone, and then picked up Morris Indech, six, and passed him out the window to the milkman. In turn the seven-year-old sister and six-months'-old baby brother followed. The last to be carried out was Meyer Erlick, three, son of the owner.

GIVES $900,000 TO DAUGHTER

A $945,000 estate was left by Mrs. Mary Lesh of Newton, it was revealed today when her will was filed for probate in East Cambridge Court by the New England Trust Company of Boston, and A. Leslie Harwood, Jr., of Newton, as trustees and executors.

Except for one public bequest of $15,000 to the Thornwell Orphanage at Clinton, S. C., the entire estate is left in trust to her daughter, Mary Olga Lesh.

The orphanage bequest carries the proviso that the principal must be invested as an endowment fund, the income to be used toward maintaining the Lesh Infirmary, part of the institution.

Each of the executors posted a bond for $1,350,000.

MacMillan, left today for Rockland, after laying over Sunday in the cove here. The weather was fair and conditions favorable for the short trip.

They will proceed to Bar Harbor tomorrow, then leave Wednesday for Yarmouth, N. S.

LIFE FOR INSANE SLAYER OF COPS

Less than two hours after his murder trial opened today in Middlesex Superior Court, Carmine La Priore, of Everett was on his way to Bridgewater State Insane Hospital for life, although a not guilty verdict was returned against him.

La Priore shot and killed Patrolman William F. Staples and Special Officer John J. Lonergan of the Everett police, on last May 5, after La Priore had been annoying Elizabeth Doyle near her home at No. 15 Mansfield street, Everett.

At the request of the accused man's counsel, Joseph J. Monahan, who offered no defence, Judge George A. Flynn, at the close of the prosecution's case, ordered the jury to return a not guilty verdict on the Staples murder count, as La Priore had been proved insane beyond a doubt and should go to Bridgewater Hospital for life.

When the jury had returned its directed verdict, Judge Flynn passed the life sentence on La Priore and h was taken to Bridgewater.

3D HUSBAND FOR COUNTESS, 16

New York, June 21 (I.N.S.).—Countess Adelaine Petridge, sixteen, is the bride today of David Raymond Wheeler, thirty-two, an official of a mortgage company of this city.

This is the Countess' third marriage.

She and Wheeler were married, after a brief courtship, in Greenwich, Ct.

Whirlwind romances have marked the career of the Countess. She is the daughter of the Hurwitz family of Paris, bankers. In 1924, when 14, she was married to Arthur Singer in Paris, according to Frank Wheeler, brother of the present bridegroom. After nine months the bride sued for divorce and Singer settled $7,500,000 on her, Wheeler said.

Next she married Count Petridge, a Russian nobleman. She obtained a divorce after seven months.

Two months ago she came to New York to perfect her knowledge of English and met her third husband.

Jury Frees Auto Speeder; Judge Has to Smile!

Judge Flynn gazed sadly on a jury in Middlesex Superior Court today when it returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of a Weston chauffeur charged with operating an auto in a dangerous manner.

"I hope," smiled the judge, finally, "that if any gentleman on this jury is hit by an auto going 40 miles an hour, he won't make any complaint."

The defendant was William J. Drysdale. His accuser, J. Sumner Viles, Weston officer, said Drysdale was speeding between 45 and 48 miles an hour.

The jury was out ten minutes.

EVELYN SPURNS 'STINGY HARRY'

Atlantic City, N. J., June 21 (I.N.S.).—Evelyn Nesbit is not going back to Harry K. Thaw, according to her latest assertion.

Today she blasted rumors that she and Thaw would remarry by declaring that Thaw "lives only for Thaw." She will not be subjected to his "whimsies," she added.

"It's so ridiculous—this talk of my going back to him," she said. "It would be utterly impossible even if I didn't enjoy my freedom. Can you imagine me subjected to his whimsies?

"He says he bought me a house. But he never made a decent gesture in my direction. He's letting the world believe he bought me a house but he wouldn't buy me even an ice cream cone."

Miss Nesbit characterized Thaw's book, "The Traitor," which he is writing, as "the most incomprehensible jumble of words that I have read, and filled with implacable hate."

RADCLIFFE GIRLS MERRY OVER CLASS GIFTS

Radcliffe College seniors had their class day exercises today and accepted class gifts which poked innocent fun at their collegiate idiosyncracies.

Constance Doe, Columbus, O., presented the gifts, and judging from the gales of laughter, the gifts 'hit home' and were gladly taken in. Barbara McQuesten of Brookline received a minature boat to remind her of her ocean voyage.

The most envied recipient was Corinthia Davis, a Kentucky belle, who for charming personification of her home State was presented a pint, "Bottled in Bond"—empty, of course.

Katherine Henry, Lincoln, N. Y., reading the class will took "Lampy" the Harvard humorist, for a "ride," bequeathing to the "estimable" magazine fond remembrances from "the girls they love so well."

Ruth Kimball of Lynn read the class poem and Barbara McQuesten, the history. Degrees will be conferred Wednesday in Sanders Theatre.

MAN FOUND INJURED ON TRACKS IN SUBWAY

Found on the tracks about fifty feet south of the Haymarket subway station, Joseph Gray, seventy, of Pearl street, Charlestown, was taken to the Relief Hospital today, where his name was placed on the danger list.

Gray was suffering from contusions of the body and legs, which he claims were received when he alighted from a car just outside the station. He asserts that his car did not stop in the station and he requested to be let off. As he stepped from the car Gray says he was crushed between it and the subway wall.

FIVE THAT DID NOT SAIL ARRIVE ON LACONIA

When the Cunarder Laconia started from Liverpool and Queenstown a fortnight ago, she boasted a passenger roster not unlike a page from "Who's Who," and one Aberdeen terrier. She docked today with her passenger list intact, but the Aberdeen terrier cargo was increased by five.

Becky, the canine, became the proud mother of a brood of pups while the Laconia was on the high seas Friday. She is consigned to Mrs. Ethel Stone of Milwaukee.

Cornelius C. Felton and his bride, formerly Miss Hope Gaston of Boston, returned from their honeymoon. Judge and Mrs. William Prest were also among the home-comers.

Miss Elizabeth Stewart, recently presented at court in London, Fred L. Higginson, Miss Joan Higginson, Mrs. Agatha Allen of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Wentworth and their four children were among other Bostonians listed. Ex-Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester was another passenger.

FIND PICKPOCKET'S LOOT IN LETTER BOX

A bill-fold containing travelers' checks, found in a mail box at the corner of Boylston street and Massachusetts avenue by Letter Carrier Harry Marithew of the Back Bay postal station, has been identified as the property of Ludder Chartier of No. 29 Newtonville avenue, Newton. Chartier told the Newton police his pockets were picked while he was riding on a crowded street car through the Fenway. The police believe the thief was afraid to attempt to dispose of the checks.

MISS CONSTANCE CUNNINGHAM

Prominent Brookline woman becomes bride of Valdimir A. Perrzoff, descendant of Russian nobility, today.

MYSTERY IN ROMANCE

the oldest of Boston families, while Perrzoff traces his ancestry back to influential nobles in power before the World War overthrew the Romanoff dynasty in Russia and put the Bolshevists in power.

Without ostentation he lives now with his mother and two brothers in a modest apartment at No. 25 Hillside street, Cambridge, while his father, Alexander Nicholas Perrzoff, sojourns in Paris in the Russian quarter with scores of others of blue-blooded aristocrats forced to flee for their lives when the Red revolution overthrew the Czar's dominion.

Young Perzzoff fled to this country by way of Japan, narrowly escaping capture after fighting a losing battle against the Reds.

After reaching Cambridge, he entered Harvard and was graduated in the class of 1923, taking a master's degree in chemistry the following year. He is attached to the research department of the Harvard Medical School.

Four years ago, it was learned, he first met the girl who is today to become his bride. It was at a social function, an exclusive affair, and was soon followed by other meetings, at which friendship ripened into love.

Mrs. Frederick Hetty Cunningham, mother of the bride, is a sister of Bishop William Lawrence, head of the Episcopal church in this diocese.

GIVES AWAY BOOZE TO PROMOTE BUSINESS

Modern business competition is so strong, Clyde A. Tyler, Lynn printers' ink manufacturer told Judge Thomas P. Riley, in Malden today, that he is forced to give liquor to his customers.

The court declared if the story proved to be true he was inclined to place the charge of illegal transportation on file, and continued the case one week for investigation.

Tyler was arrested in Malden Saturday, coming from the house of a man the police say is suspected of being a bootlegger. He was found to have 12 bottle of Scotch in his car. He admitted the possession of liquor, but told Judge Riley it was for his own use, or rather to be given to customers. Judge Riley said if the story proved to be untrue he would fine Tyler $200.

STRIKE OF 1,800 CLOSES BIG ADAMS COTTON MILL

Adams, June 21 (A.P.).—Following a strike in which approximately 1,800, or 90 per cent. of the 2,000 employes, participated this morning, the plant of the Berkshire Cotton Company, the largest industry in Adams, suspended operations this noon.

The strike is a result of the discharge of 40 speeder tenders who quit a week ago as a protest against operating three frames instead of two. After they walked out they were told their places would be filled by other workers.

MISTRIAL ORDER IN 'RAP' CASE

O'Brien then moved for a new trial, a jury was quickly impanelled under Edward F. Cunningham, an insurance agent living at No. 30 Massasoit street, Mattapan, as foreman, and the district attorney began his opening argument.

In making his ruling Judge Gray said:

"On account of certain things that have happened, I will excuse you from further duty in this case. I feel you should know the reasons why I declared a mis-trial.

"Before saying anything further I will explain that nothing was brought to my attention in any way concerning the defendant or his counsel, Mr. Flaherty.

ALLEGED STATEMENT.

"It seems that last Thursday that a policeman of the city of Boston who is now under indictment for an offense similar to that in connection with which you have been hearing evidence, is alleged to have made the remark that one of the jurors of this panel, naming him, would 'go through' for a defendant and would take care of two or three others.

"That remark was called to the attention of the district attorney, and it became his duty to make an investigation. That he did and on Friday morning he reported to the court.

"While I have chosen to adopt a charitable view in this case, and it isn't entirely charitable because the statements convinced me, if it should occur again the coincidence would be too remarkable to be overlooked."

WOULD FIX IT.

The first witness called by the government was Charles Brown, druggist, of Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, who testified his home was raided in January, 1926. The witness said he later saw Ullian, who told him he would "fix it up" for $100, of which $50 was to go to Sergeant William D. Walsh of Division 9.

Brown testified that later Ullian asked for $200 additional, stating he wanted to "split it up with the boys."

The next witness was Ezekiel Edenston of No. 14 Wyoming street, Roxbury, who told of witnessing a raid by Sergt. Walsh in December of 1925 on the Wyoming street house where he lives, owned by Mrs. Ida Karp. The witness said Sergt. Walsh told Mrs. Karp to telephone to a certain man, which she did, the police officer also talking with the party on the phone.

The same evening, according to Edenston, he accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Karp to the home of Ullian. He testified he heard Ullian tell the couple that for $100 they would not be arrested.

Mrs. Ida Karp of No. 14 Wyoming street, the next witness, also described the raid, and told of a conversation with Sergeant Walsh.

The witness said Ullian wanted $100 to represent her and her husband, and later asked for $700. Mrs. Karp said she did not have the money and Ullian offered to place a third mortgage on her home, she said. She added that he told her he wanted the money for police officers.

John F. Manning, who with Patrick Burke runs a cigar store on Washington street, Roxbury, testified that in May of 1925 his store was raided and Burke arrested. The witness said he saw Ulian in court the next day, and was told it would "cost" him $100.

Manning said he was introduced to Ulian by a man not Patrolman Arthur O'Shea.

NAB 5 IN RAIN OF BULLETS

Fleeing through a rain of bullets from the muzzle of a policeman's revolver during a three-mile chase leading from Waltham, five alleged auto thieves were captured in Auburndale today when their car overturned rounding a corner.

The five men, all claiming Cambridge as their home, gave their names as William Skehan, 53; Albert W. Hagh, 22; Joseph J. Joyce, Leo Sullivan and Joseph J. Cleary.

The Waltham police, notified by the Cambridge authorities that the garage of Arthur W. Evans on Fayerweather street, North Cambridge, had been broken into and a car stolen, were on the watch when the car containing the five men roared through Waltham centre.

Commands to halt were ignored as the car sped toward Newton. Jumping into another machine, Patrolmen Walsh and Cunningham clung to the running board, discharging their guns in rapid succession.

Eight shots were fired, only serving to stimulate the fleeing men to greater speed. Rolling into Auburndale the machine took a corner on two wheels, bounded across the road and turned over.

HOUSE DEFEATS MOVE TO ADJOURN JUNE 30

Washington, June 21 (A.P.).—By a vote of 190 to 134, House opponents to adjournment of Congress on June 30, won an initial round today by sending the adjournment resolution, sponsored by Republican leaders, to the Ways and Means Committee for consideration.

This blocks temporarily, at least, the effort to set a definite adjournment date.

WILL HELP CHOOSE "BOSTON GIRL"

MISS LUCY PARK

Associate editor of Harper's Bazaar and authority on fashions, one of the four judges who will select The Boston Girl of 1926.

TO PICK BOSTON GIRL OF 1926

Miss Lucy Park, fashion authority with Harper's Bazar and an associate editor of the famed style magazine, is one of the four judges who will select The Boston Girl of 1926 for whom the Boston Evening American is conducting a quest.

Smartly garbed girls are invited to send a photograph to the Boston Girl of 1926 editor, which will be placed before Miss Park and her artist associate judges.

If there are any questions regarding the rules, which follow, please communicate with The Boston Girl of 1926 Editor, Boston Evening American.

The quest for The Boston Girl of 1926 is inspired by the idea of finding among modish, smartly dressed young women, the young woman best exemplifying innate good taste in dress, personality and charm in dress, poise and appearance.

Deciding factors in the selection of The Boston Girl of 1926 will be carriage and posture, poise and appearance; the aesthetic impression the ensemble of her clothes and appearance creates; her art in choosing clothes most appropriate to her type.

Members of the theatrical profession are not eligible.

No limitation is imposed as to the style or nature of the raiment worn excepting bathing costumes which are ineligible. The raiment may be street, sports or evening wear or any ensemble of clothing the prospective Boston Girl of 1926 believes most becoming to her.

Judges include L. W. Sargent, director the Sargent School for Physical Education; Royal Balley Farnum, director art education for Massachusetts, Massachusetts School of Art; Cyrus Dallin, distinguished American sculptor, and Miss Lucy Pair, fashion authority, associate editor Harper's Bazar.

Method of selection. Preliminary selection from photographs. As nominated for final consideration, candidates must appear before the committee of judges in person in the clothing in which photographed without change or embellishment.

To secure consideration as The Boston Girl of 1926, any young woman may submit photographs made anywhere; friends or relatives may submit photographs of eligible young women, accompanying the photographs with a complete identification; candidates may apply by telephone, letter or in person to the Boston Girl of 1926 Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Liberty 4000, who will arrange to have photographs made without charge.

Honors to be awarded by the judges whose decision is binding on all candidates without recourse—first, a silver laurel wreath, suitably inscribed and $500 in gold; second, a bar pin replica in miniature of the laurel wreath of silver and an evening gown (or other raiment desirable to the young woman honored), not to exceed $250 in value; third, a bar pin replica in miniature of the laurel wreath of silver and a street ensemble (or other raiment desirable to the young woman honored), not to exceed $100 in value. The young women honored as second and third choice of the committee of judges may elect to receive the second portion of their award in gold instead of the evening gown or street ensemble.

Fleeing Boy Caught

Hillsboro, N. H., June 21.—Eugene Lamoy, 18, who broke away from his police guard while on the way to jail to await trial for stealing an automobile and breaking and entering, has been recaptured.

GEN. HALLER HAS QUIT; COUNT ALSO OUT OF ARMY

Warsaw, Poland, June 21 (A.P.).—President Moscicki has accepted the resignations of Gen. Joseph Haller and Gen. Count Szeptycki.

Gen. Haller headed the troops in the Posen region which, for a short time after the Pilsudski coup d'etat, threatened to oppose the new regime by force.

Szeptycki recently fought a bloodless duel with Count Skrzynski, former premier, their differendes arising from the Pilsudski coup.

REED FOR JURY PROBE OF PENN 'SLUSH FUNDS'

Washington, June 21 (A.P.).—A grand jury should consider some of the things that occurred during the Pennsylvania Republican primary, in the opinion of Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the Senate campaign funds committee.

With Albert M. Greenfield, a heavy financial backer of William S. Vare, on the witness stand, Reed today sought with only partial success to get at the details regarding operations of the business men's committee which supported Vare, and finally turned to the witness and said:

"If I were prosecuting attorney, you would make that explanation to a jury."

WITNESS IN PROTEST.

The observation followed Greenfield's statement that money sent the business men's committee was turned over to Thomas F. Watson, central treasurer of Vare's organization in his successful fight against Senator Pepper and Gov. Pinchot for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Reed read a section of the law providing that funds collected by campaign committees must be turned over to their own treasurers, but the witness protested that the business men's committee "disbursed no money," and that "we were not doing anything that wasn't right."

"I think undoubtedly you were," Reed retorted.

Greenfield then started a long reply, but the Missouri Senator cut him off.

REED IN SHARP REPLY.

"I want you to be up on the situation," the witness said.

"I'm perfectly up on the situation and I'm up on you, too," Reed snapped.

Just previously Greenfield had been cross-examined about a cash contribution of $15,000 made by Jules E. Mostbaum, president of the Stanley Company of America, and had convulsed the committee room by remarking that it seemed to be the "custom" in Philadelphia to make such contributions in cash. Reed had dissented from the form of the witness' replies and had warned him he must make "direct answers."

SEEK BOGUS PORTER IN $114 CIGARETTE THEFT

An unidentified man claiming to be Boston & Maine porter was sought today by police of the Hanover street station after he had duped a Columbus avenue tobacco shop out of $114.25 worth of cigarettes. The man, according to the complaint, went to the A. D. Ross store at No. 210 Columbus avenue and ordered the cigarettes to be delivered to him at the North Station. He met the messenger at the station, took the cigarettes and instructed the messenger to wait until he returned with the money. He failed to return.

COL. GUTHRIE AN AMERICAN CITIZEN NOW

Colonel Percy A. Guthrie, Boston attorney, was made an American citizen today in Federal Court by Judge Lowell. Witnesses for Guthrie in court were Daniel H. Rose, Superintendent of Public Markets, and Lieutenant J. Ernest Kerr, the first Boston recruit in the 236th Regiment, McLane Highlanders, which Guthrie organized and commanded during the World War.

Col. Guthrie.

The Highlanders were the first Canadian regiment recruited in the Hub. Upon his return from France, Colonel Guthrie established his residence in Boston. He arrived at 5 o'clock in the morning and at 11 o'clock had taken the first steps to become a citizen.

3 IN HUB FAMILY HURT IN FRENCH TRAIN WRECK

Mrs. Mary Louise Leeden, her husband and their five-year-old son, Raymond, of No. 465 East Third street, South Boston, were among the injured in the Paris-Bordeaux express train wreck when seven persons were killed, dispatches said today. The South Boston trio are the only Americans reported as victims. It was thought at first amputation of Mrs. Leeden's right leg might be necessary, but this has been found unnecessary, according to the cables. It was said that Mrs. Leeden's condition was serious.

COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Newport Activities of Interest to Hub Folk

"REGISTERING" AT THE Casino in Newport, a social rite never neglected by those of importance in high places, is the order of the day again in that heart of fashionable gaiety. With "Bailey's Beach," the Casino shares society's favor as the very center of Newport's frivolity by day.

ENGAGED

Miss Georgiana Hawkins, fiancee of Keyser Manley, Harvard 1926, will be a charming figure at the Beck Hall tea, class day's smartest event. (Bachrach Copyright.)

BOSTON HAS an interest in Casino affairs—through stockholders of prominence and by office holding in the possession of notable social leaders. Rodolphe Agassiz and Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames are in the "A's" in the first named list.

MRS. GUY NORMAN (Louisa Palfrey), Miss Mary Weld, Miss Martha C. Codman, George Richmond Fearing and George Richmond Fearing, 3d, all these names appear, likewise that of Boston's delightful bachelor and famous host, Grafton Dulaney Cushing.

AND ACCORDED a signal honor, indeed, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer (Pauline Revere) was a year or two ago chosen to be of the Board of Governors for this famous and highly exclusive organization.

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT and Miss Grace Vanderbilt have registered at the Casino for the season; also Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth P. Budd, Mr. and Mrs. James Lenox Banks, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Hakan B. Steffanson.

THAT MRS. F. LOTHROP AMES is to be at Newport this Summer, to put her daughter, Miss Mary Ames, through the preliminary paces of a coming out, means that a number of Boston's charming debutantes will flit in and out of the Newport picture.

MISS AMES, cousin of the Misses Woodward (daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward, of New York and Newport), is a tall, slender, dark-eyed girl, due for a large popularity in young set circles.

THE AMES NEWPORT establishment is a handsome affair—a comfortable Georgian house, gray in color made gay with encompassing gardens and brilliant awnings; with a broad terrace on the water side.

FOR SEVERAL SEASONS it has not been occupied by Mrs. Ames and her young people. Last Summer mother and daughter traveled abroad and prior to that a Summer or two was spent on the nearby North Shore.

SPEAKING OF MRS. GUY NORMAN, her Washington street gardens are just now the admiration of scores, as rare and beautiful specimens of that tall stately flower, the eremerus robusta.

GEORGE ANDREWS MORIARTY, Jr., is at Newport, stopping temporarily with the senior Mrs. Moriarty at Miss Fanny Foster's Newport establishment in Leroy avenue. Miss Hilda Emmett, from London, is at the Muenchinger-King.

MRS. ANDREW CHEVES DULLES is at "Rosevale" Villa in Narragansett avenue with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ettore Romano Fontana. A new Rosevale feature is a passenger elevator installed by Mrs. Dulles for use since her invalidism.

VINCENT ASTOR'S yacht "Nourmahal" dropped anchor in Newport not long ago, with the E. Gerry Chadwicks aboard as guests of that prominent yachtsman. Horace Binney on his "Queen Mab," and Spencer Borden on his "Sally Ann" also registered at the Newport station of the New York Yacht Club.

WILLIAM GREENOUGH came in on his yacht "Venture." William S. Eaton brought in the "Taormina," John W. Bird the "Sealove" and William F. Whitehouse the "Sea Fox," to ride at anchor in Newport's harbor.

THE T. SUFFERN TAILERS, just back from Europe, are at Honeysuckle Lodge, and the famous "Ocean Golf Links" once again resound to the click of the golf ball. The Tailer links, enjoying a niche quite all their own in golf annals, were pronounced perfect for the opening match.

SOCIETY IN NEWPORT and elsewhere is showering congratulations on the Prince and Princess Edward J. Lobkowicz of Park avenue, New York, on the arrival of a son, bringing grandparent honors to Mr. and Mrs. C. Bai Lihme of Chicago and Watch Hill.

WITH ECLAT and brilliance the Lihme-Lobkowicz ceremonial, in the small church at Watch Hill, climaxed a week or so of lavish entertaining, with the Bai Lihmes as hosts. Scores of guests came from this country and abroad.

IT WAS A PRETTY romance between the young society girl of immense riches and the impoverished young aristocrat, one that thrived under the brilliant mid-Winter Sun of Palm Beach, where the Prince duplicated the enormous personal popularity that was his on New York.

FOLLOWING THE LOSS of family estates and fortunes incident to Austria-Hungary's downfall, Prince Edward—as has many another noble youth—came to America to begin anew, at the foot of the business ladder.

BEGINNING HUMBLY as salesman in a New York establishment, his fellow workers in the interior decorations department dubbed him "Prince Chintz," and voted him a charming fellow. Now he is, I believe, at the head of a famous New York Art Gallery.

SMITH DEGREE FOR ACTRESS

Northampton, June 21.—A distinguished British war worker and official of the League of Nations, and a noted American actress were recipients today of two of the three honorary degrees awarded by Smith College at its forty-eighth annual commencement.

Dame Rachel E. Crowdy, who was a principal commandant of the voluntary aid detachment in France and Belgium and now is chief of the section of social questions of the league secretariat, and Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske were the women. Dame Crowdy was made a doctor of laws, and Mrs. Fiske master of arts.

The third degree was one awarded Professor Emeritus Henry M. Tyler of Smith, as doctor of literary humanities. Professor Tyler was first dean of Smith.

Four hundred and sixty-four seniors were in the graduating class.

SIMON PICKED WRONG AUTO TO CRASH INTO

Don Quixote tilted at windmills, but young Simon Brown of Portsmouth, N. H., being made of sterner stuff, tilted at two Boston police officers, and was fined $15 in Municipal Court today for speeding. The policemen, whose automobile was overturned in the crash, were Special Officers Louis DiSessa and Coleman Joyce of Division 5, who were treated at City Hospital for minor injuries and sent home. They were sitting in a machine at Shawmut avenue and West Dedham street when the car, driven by Brown, crashed into theirs.

GIVE CAPTAIN'S SON 10 DAYS

John M. Brennan, son of Captain Michael J. Brennan of the Brattle square station, was given ten days by Judge Arthur P. Stone in East Cambridge Court today for attempting to rescue a prisoner.

The prisoner was Edgar M. Johnson of Reed street, who was arrested by Captain Edward J. Welsh of the North Cambridge station, for operating a machine without a license.

It was alleged that Brennan came along and pushed him out of the captain's grasp and told him to "beat it home and get his license."

Brennan pleaded not guilty, and when found guilty, appealed. He admitted telling Johnson to go home.

Johnson was found guilty and fined $5 and paid.

5,000 VETS AT ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., June 21 (A.P.)—Pleading for law enforcement now more than ever before, John R. McQuigg, national commander of the American Legion, opened the disabled veterans convention here today. More than 5,000 veterans from all parts of the country were here.

Citing that 11,000 murders, committed in the United States last year, was fourteen times the number committed in Canada, McQuigg declared "our courts and juries were allowing too many criminals to escape, and today the law-abiding citizen is less secure than he was years ago.

"If there was ever a time in the history of America when law and order needed to be maintained, it is now." The legion commander said: "I am not referring any more to the eighteenth amendment than I am to laws generally."

DEAREST ANNE:

This week has been awfully gay with the races at the Country Club and they were great fun.

Dress the Part—

—You can be fashionably dressed for every occasion at a very small expenditure if you know where to buy. And Coleman's Fashion Shop, 175 Tremont St., is having a great sale of a special purchase of new dresses at $13.95 each. They are simply lovely. More than a dozen different styles, in every color of the rainbow. Dresses for Summer sports, afternoon, street and business wear. All the latest fashions and best quality materials. Sizes for both women and misses. Crepe de chines, flat crepes, polka dots, figured and flowered chiffon georgettes, striped, tub and printed silks, also eyelet embroidered batistes.

Wonderful opportunity to buy for Summer holidays. Dresses such as these at Coleman's Fashion Shop for $13.95 are lots more elsewhere. You can now get two for the usual price of one.

Do go in to 175 Tremont St. and you will be amazed at these extraordinary values. It hardly seems possible that dresses of such finish, style, workmanship and quality are only $13.95. See them yourself.

Pirates Capture Women!

This time in the form of fashionable jewelry. Captain Kidd, Jolly Roger and their band of hearty buccaneers in search for gold roved the Spanish Main. Now wonderful necklaces, bracelets and earrings made from their plunder are women's most fashionable accessory. I saw some of the loveliest ones at Filene's. My eyes fairly popped. "Pieces of Eight," like those on the little sketch, look with their pure glint of gleaming gold as if they had been found in a wonderful old treasure chest. Necklace is $4.50, and earrings and bracelet $2.00 each. Gold filled.

The gold rush is on again. Everywhere—at the races, fashionable weddings, on the street, at teas and dances, on all occasions there is a marked tendency toward gold jewelry. It is youthful and most becoming and fashion's latest whim now showing itself in pirate form.

"Buccaneer" is a stunning pattern too. Little triangles, held together in flexible form, are shaped like the hats the lusty buccaneers wore. These, too, are made into bracelets and earrings. The bracelet is $4.00 and earrings $2.00. A turquoise matrix or jade stone hangs in the centre of another style at $3.00. The bracelet to match is only $5.00 and simply lovely. This new jewelry is the last word in style and no smart new costume is complete without at least one piece of it. Do go into Filene's and ask to see all of their seven styles, Treasure Island, Captain Kidd, Buccaneer, Pieces of Eight, Jolly Roger, Pinafore and Spanish Main. Yo-ho-ho for the last word in chic!

Greatest Sale of China

—Did you ever hear of real Haviland china tea cups at 25 cents each? Well, Jones, McDuffee & Stratton, corner Hawley and Franklin Sts., are selling them for that now. Also large size jugs of this imported French Limoges china for 65 cents. Open vegetable dishes at 30 cents and individual ones 15 cents, and 16-inch platters 75 cents. Three different patterns, all unheard-of values. Many pieces are heavier weight, particularly adaptable to Summer cottage, camp, children's and kitchen use.

Jones, McDuffee & Stratton is also reducing glass 1-3, 1-2 and more! Tumblers, goblets, glass fruit dishes, salad plates, finger bowls and jugs, plain, cut or engraved. Just think of a large glass ice tea jug with top for 85 cents. Many useful pieces at a fraction of the original price. Their regular fancy line throughout the store, as well as dinner ware in 6 or 7 patterns, is all drastically cut in prices.

Don't delay. Go now to Jones, McDuffee & Stratton's, as values like these won't last long.

Miss Craigie McKay and Miss Nancy Yuille, down at the steamer seeing friends off to Europe, were very smartly attired.

The Man of the House

—Must be made cool and comfortable these warm days, especially at night when he is weary and needs a revivifying sleep. This only can he get if he wears fine solsette pajamas such as those I found at Talbot's, 395 Washington St., the other day. They are only $2.45 and as soft and beautiful as silk. They come in all pastel colors as well as white trimmed with pretty rayon frogs. Most attractive. These pajamas are cut good and full and are the most wonderful value at $2.45 or 3 for $7.00. Now is the time to get them. It is very rare that one finds solsette pajamas of this quality for so little.

While I was in Talbot's they showed me the most marvelous athletic union suits, made of very fine, excellent quality broadcloth and only 95 cents a suit. They are guaranteed in size, are nice and comfortable and roomy. There is no pulling which tears so many badly cut garments. Broadcloth, of course, wears better than anything else and looks so soft and shiny after laundering. In warm weather it is essential that every man have plenty of changes and he certainly can if he goes to Talbot's and gets this wonderful athletic underwear at 95 cents.

Do go into Talbot's and supply your husband now with a few sets of these beautiful solsette pajamas and broadcloth union suits. He will then be happy the rest of the Summer.

Remember Your Wedding Day

—On her wedding anniversary every girl wonders if her husband still feels toward her the same way he did on that memorable occasion. He should therefore show his love and devotion by sending her some flowers as a loving reminder. Penn the Florist, 124 Tremont St., have just those that will bring joy to her heart.

A beautiful basket of gorgeous mixed flowers is lovely and only $5.00. Big bow of colorful ribbon blends with the soft tones of the roses, sweet peas, snapdragons, daisies, calendulas and larkspur and looks so feminine on the dainty green, gold, lavender or yellow basket. Such beauty has an irresistible appeal.

Penn also has adorable window boxes of growing plants in combinations such as deliciously sweet heliotrope, begonias and calceolarias (pronounced cal-see-o-laria). These are $5.00, too, and may be planted later in the garden and bloom all Summer.

Oleandas from Sweden are very appropriate now, especially with the advent of the Crown Prince and Princess to Boston. Beautiful growing pink or white ones come from $1.50 up. Smell one once and you will love them for all time. Dainty shell pink everblooming begonias are a very inexpensive wedding anniversary reminder.

A "tin wedding" gift that is most attractive I saw at Penn's the other day. Most practical, too. A hand-decorated imported watering pot was filled with a lovely assortment of flowers with a ribbon bow on the handle and a packet of garden seeds on the spout. From $6.00 to $12.00. Send your wife after many years flowers as you did on your wedding day, and you will both always be happy.

A High Dive for Suits

—In a few days everyone will be diving high and low over counters looking for bathing suits. Now is the time to go to Hovey's before the hot weather really settles in and buy one of their lovely knitted swimming suits. All the latest novelties—such an assortment you never saw before at such low prices.

At $5.00 are the newest fashions for the sea. Navy knitted trunks have white step-in shirts. Also red and white and blue and white striped shirts. V-neck in front and back. Excellent quality and most stylish, wonderful for the energetic swimmer. Like a man's suit only the top stays in place much better on account of the step-in idea.

Two-piece effect one-piece suits come in pure worsted jersey in georgeous jacquard patterns. Soft and brilliant colorings and designs $5.00. Also all plain colors with white belt at this price, as well as the new sunrise tones in new rib-stitch worsted which has wonderful give.

Very sporty are suits with Tartan plaid trunks and plain tops. You will see a lot of these at the fashionable resorts. Bab's just got one and you have no idea how striking she looks in it.

Tights to go under last year's taffeta or satin suit come in jade, blue or red wool, only $3.00 each at Hovey's. Black cotton ones are $1.00.

Rubberized scarfs or bandannas come in plain, figured or polka dot sateen for $1.00. Others $1.95. Diving caps are 39 cents, also colored ones with flowers. With chin-strap 75 cents. Many attractive models. Do go to this swimming suit department on Hovey's second floor and you'll find everything you need.

Stock Up With Stockings

—Now is the time to get a supply of stockings for vacation. Beautiful "Holeproof" chiffon stockings are now only $1.00 a pair at Talbot's, 395 Washington St. Beautiful fitting and colored, clear, sheer and long wearing. It seems extraordinary that this type of hose may be bought for so little, 3 for $2.85.

The fashionable woman is wearing Holeproof chiffon hosiery in preference to other types on account of the following five fashion features:

1. Exceptional clearness. No ugly shadowy rings around the leg, all avoided by using a uniformly even thread.

2. Latest Paris shades. All the tones are selected by "Holeproof" Paris style experts. The hosiery is put through a unique dyeing process to keep it clear and bright. It also goes through a special anti-fade treatment.

3. Exquisite transparency. These stockings are really superior to others in sheer gauziness. Both the chiffon and heavier weights. Absolutely no cloudiness or streaks.

4. No loose ends. Every pair of Holeproof hosiery is carefully finished by hand on the inside of each stocking.

5. All perfect. 9 Inspections at the Holeproof factory assure you that every stocking they make is absolutely perfect.

Much enlarged is the "Holeproof Hosiery" department at Talbot's and if you have never worn this make go in and try a pair of these $1.00 pure silk chiffon. I know you'll love them. At $1.00 or 3 for $2.85 also are exquisitely fitting service weight pure silk with mercerized lisle heel, toe, sole and anti-ravel top. Excellent for wear and appearance. Far and above the ordinary stockings one finds at this price.

The Fashion Center

—Of New England has been Boston this past week.

The Crown Prince and Princess of Sweden being here and the social events in their honor drew the attention of the elite of fashion as viewed by royalty.

The races, too, drew great crowds, and it was a charming spectacle to watch, everyone turned out in gala arroy, especially as the weather was perfect both days. Do wish you could have been here to see them, too.

Next week, of course, many will be motoring or going on "the specials" to New London for the boat races, will hope to see you there. Until Friday.

Affectionately,

Priscilla

ON SALE AT GOOD DEALERS

BUY SHOES IN SHOE STORE

Perhaps it has been your experience, as it has been mine, to find on your doorstep a voluable gentleman, offering you special bargains in shoes or hosiery or what not "right from the factory."

Experience is the best teacher, and I will admit that I have fallen more than once for the persuasive itinerant salesman, only to find that I could have secured better quality at a lower price from my regular shoe dealer; then too, if my purchase did not fit as well as it should or there was any other complaint, my caller had flown to parts unknown and I was left holding the bag-usually a misfit.

The reason why the best place to get real shoe values is in a shoe store is simple. House to house canvassing is hard work, and training these salesmen is expensive. Moreover, the manufacturer must pay the canvasser a higher rate of commission than a store salesman. In the long run, the customer, of course, must pay this extra expense, which is simply added to the selling price of the shoe. Therefore, its very clear that the same shoe will be cheaper in a shoe store than on the doorstep.

FOURTH OF JULY GET-TOGETHER

The Fourth seems to me an excellent day to spend at home. And a lawn or piazza party for the young folks is the surest way I know to keep them safe and sane on this lively day.

Invitations can be sent out in the form of giant pasteboard crackers—made double to fold over with the invitation itself written inside.

A table on the lawn or piazza is ideal for refreshments. Strips of blue crepe paper, about 6" wide, laid down the center atop of a white crepe paper cloth, is attractive. Big, puffy marshmallows can be laid in rows on the blue paper to be used later for evening toasting. Favors are easily made—Roman candles of wrapped stick candy stuck in empty tumblers, with lead pencil "rockets," and torpedoes of salted nuts twisted in squares of red, white or blue tissue. Fruit cocktails can be served in paper cups surrounded by a cardboard cannon cracker. Fancy paper napkins can be fastened to paper plates with clips so they won't blow away.

The eats may be of the simplest. I'll gladly make up a menu for any one on request.

Marshmallows toasted over canned heat on the long toasting forks that come with the big boxes of one brand of marshmallows are simple but effective fun-makers.

If you do plan a party, I'd love to help you further.

MAKING A ROSE JAR

With the rose season comes the inevitable question, "How can I make a rose jar?" So this year I am taking time by the forelock and giving you the recipe now so that you may make the most of each fragrant petal for

POT POURRI.

Gather rose petals when the roses are in their richest bloom, but not when the dew is on them, and pack in a jar in layers two inches deep. Sprinkle about two tablespoons of fine dry salt upon each layer. Continue this until the jar is full, adding fresh petals and salt daily. Keep in dark, dry, cool place a week after the last relay is gathered. Turn out the salted petals upon a broad platter. Mix and toss together until the mixture is loosened. Then mix thoroughly with a formula that I will give you. Pack in a clean jar, cover lightly and set away to ripen. It will be ready for rose jars in a fortnight and, if kept covered, will be fragrant for 20 years.

MOTHERS

You can lighten your task of keeping your children's clothes fresh and dainty.

Starch with Linit — the remarkable new laundry starch. It keeps the kiddies' clothes looking fresh, clean and new. It makes even ordinary cloth fabrics look and feel like real linen.

Linit makes a thin, free-running milky starch mixture. This quickly penetrates every thread of the fabric, instead of coating it. Thus your ironing, too, is made easier.

Your fabrics take on a delightfully smooth finish—entirely free from lint. This absence of lint prevents garments from soiling quickly.

Ask your grocer for Linit — he has it.

FORMULA FOR ROSE JARS

One-half ounce violet powder; one ounce orris root; one-half ounce rose powder; one-half ounce heliotrope powder; one-half teaspoon mace; one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon; one-half teaspoon cloves; four drops oil of roses; ten drops oil chiris; twenty drops oil melissne; twenty drops oil eucalyptus, ten drops bergamot; two drams alcohol.

Your druggist will make up the formula for you, if you don't want to tackle it yourself.

For a rose pillow, spread the petals in the shade, but on a sunny day, and dry thoroughly before stuffing the pillow. Then scatter a tablespoon of powdered orris root among them and sprinkle with ten drops of real attar of roses. The inferior qualities will not hold the fragrance. Make the inner cover of glazed cambric, the outer of silk or satin.

Match Marks

Marks that have been made on paint with matches can be removed by rubbing first with a slice of lemon, then with whiting, and washing with soap and water.

If you wish to leave a note for the milkman, when placing the milk bottle outside, invert a jelly tumbler over mouth of bottle to protect the message from rain, snow or wind. For removing bottle tops use a nut pick or steel knitting needle.

BATHTUB GIRL OFFERS TO DON TIGHTS IN COURT

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Miss Jean Bodine, twenty-three-year-old actress, who was charged with having done a "girl in a bath tub" act at the 125th Street Theatre, was discharged today after Magistrate Smith ruled her offer to don a pair of flesh-colored tights in court was unnecessary.

The defence offered this evidence to prove that the girl might have been thought naked, while wearing the tights. Detectives who arrested her testified she wore no tights, while other witnesses said she did.

HEAVY VOTING IN MAINE TODAY

Augusta, Me., June 21 (I.N.S.).—Heavy voting marked the Republican primaries in Maine today with the battles over the offices of sheriff in Kennebec and Cumberland Counties overshadowing the gubernatorial contest between Governor Ralph O. Brewster and Major Arthur L. Thayer.

Sheriff Henry F. Cummings of Kennebec, ousted after charges of laxity in office had been brought, opposed R. A. Wintham for the office.

In Cumberland County Sheriff King F. Graham, who has held office ten years, was opposed by Gilbert Power. Lawyers have led the fight against Graham.

Governor Brewster, who has favored a proposed constitutional amendment barring State aid for sectarian institutions, was reported as having Ku Klux Klan support.

Mayor Ernest L. McLean of this city, was unopposed for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Ira Hersey of the Aroostook County district, was the only Congressional candidate opopsed today.

GHOST PLAYS FOR D'ANNUNZIO

Gardone, Italy, June 21 (A.P.).—The exile which Gabriele D'Annunzio recently imposed upon himself at his villa here has been broken by a visit from the spirit of Frank Liszt, who, the soldier-poet declares, played his new piano, producing "a beautiful rythmic tempest."

In a letter to a firm of Milanese piano manufacturers, whom he addresses as "My dear companions in sonorous construction," the poet describes how upon the arrival of the instrument it began to vibrate, drowning the sound of nearby church bells.

"This is a place of mysteries and prodigies," he continues. "Now, without trembling, I perceived that the shadow of Liszt, who was once a guest here, had entered the instrument and was producing with long immaterial fingers a beautiful rhythmic tempest."

PEACEMAKER KILLED, POLICE HUNT SLAYER

Pittsfield, June 21 (A.P.).—Police today searched for the slayer of Frank Latonio, who was shot to death last night when he attempted to act as peacemaker for two of his friends. Latonio, the father of six children, was picked up mortally wounded in front of his home and died on the way to a hospital.

Police said two men who had been at Latonio's home began quarreling as they left. Latonio attempted to calm them, whereupon one man drew a revolver and fired five shots.

Gag Ungags Him

—Boston Evening American Photo

SURPRISE SPEAKER "Gosh, that hurt!" were the first words Forest Dinsmore of Madison, Me., had uttered in 18 months. He spoke them at City Hospital when Dr. Meinolphe Kappius removed a gag from Dinsmore's mouth when the Mainer did not expect him to. Dinsmore was stricken deaf and dumb by a bolt of lightning 18 months ago. All other efforts failed, but surprise and a doctor's wit gave him back his speech.

HER HONESTY NOT ASSAILED

In the captions which appeared under a strip of pictures printed in the Boston Evening American on Tuesday, June 8, in connection with the loss of an heirloom teacup, this newspaper did not intend to imply that the owner, Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, of No. 49 Beacon street, Boston, was not honest.

The Boston Evening American does not question the honesty of Mrs. Putnam in her claim that the priceless family treasure was not returned to her from the repair shop by ten-year-old Freddie Elliott.

"I have no intention of bringing suit against the man to whom I took the teacup for repairs," said Mrs. Putnma, "as I have no desire to injure his trade. He claims the messenger had a receipt for delivery, but he couldn't produce it. I never expect to see the cup again; although it was priceless in value to me.

"The repair man brought the messenger boy to my house and the boy pointed to a table in the hallway and said he left the teacup upon it. The cup may have been left at some other person's home by mistake. If so, I would welcome its return."

LAUDS TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

Philadelphia, June 21 (A.P.).—Delegates to the twenty-second annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World got down to business today and entered into discussions and conferences which will last until Thursday.

Several thousand delegates from all parts of this country, Canada, Europe and as far away as Australia are here.

The convention opened at a general session of the Academy of Music.

An elaborate entertainment program, with many novel features, has been arranged. It includes a mammoth pageant, scheduled for tonight, containing every phase of advertising, from bell-ringing to sky-writing.

Through their "tireless efforts and continuous fight for 'truth in advertising,'" Sir Henry W. Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, today told the convention its members had done more than any other factor to establish in the business world the faith of the buyer in the honest purpose of the seller. Proper advertising in its introductory aspect, the speaker said, was the foundation of successful business.

Advertising which excites the reader to travel, Sir Henry declared, was inducing countless thousands to turn their faces toward the beauty spots of America and Canada.

With this announcement the contest comes to an end. The entries closed at 6 o'clock on Saturday evening.

TARNISHED WINGS

by BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "GILDED KISSES" and "PIRATE OF HEARTS"

Story of a Boston Girl Who Liked Jazz Music and the Bright Lights

"I was just coming down for you, my lady-" Moms cried, furiously. "What do you mean by coming home at this hour of the night?"

READ THIS FIRST:

MERRY LOCKE falls in love with an unknown man whom she passes every day on Boylston street. To fall in love is nothing new to Merry. She has been doing it ever since she was sixteen years old. But this time she feels she has found the Real Thing.

On her twentieth birthday, Merry decides that somehow or other she will make the Man in Gray, as she calls the stranger, speak to her. She drops her handbag at his feet when she meets him on the street. But instead of speaking to her, he gives it to her and gravely goes on his way.

Merry fails in two of her tests at business college. Merry dreads breaking this news to MOMS.

At home she sees her sister, CASSIE, drive up to the house with the Man in Gray. Cassie tells her that he is a lawyer she has met in her office and that he offered her a lift home. She does not remember his name.

That night Merry and Jinny, her youngest sister, go to the circus. DERRICK JONES, a college boy, who lives next door, goes with them. Merry finds herself separated from Derrick and Jinny, and meets the Man in Gray. He takes her home, and kisses her at the gate, against her will. Merry knows that she has fallen in love with him, but she doesn't want this love affair to end like all the rest of hers—in "petting parties."

(NOW GO WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER VI.

Copyright, 1926, Johnson Features, Inc.

THE darkness under the willow tree was thick and soft like black velvet.

Merry couldn't see the face of the man who held her in his arms. But she stayed where she was, with her head against the rough shoulder of his coat, while his fingers stroked her wet eyelids and cheeks.

"You're crying," he said. "It's my fault. I had no business kissing you. You're tired, too, aren't you?" Under the soft linen of her dress he could feel that she was trembling all over.

"I won't keep you any longer," he went on, holding her tighter than before. Then suddenly he let her go. "Good night. I'll see you tomorrow, won't I? Good night."

Merry was still leaning against the white fence pickets when his car turned the corner of the street. Her fingers were raised to her lips.

Aching with a happiness and an unhappiness that she had never known before in her life, she turned and went slowly toward the house.

As she started up the steps a sudden sharp sound broke the nighttime stillness—the sound of a screen door being slammed.

Merry knew that that was Derrick Jones' way of letting her know that he had been watching her all

QUEBEC LAW BOOSTS BEER-- HAPGOOD

CONTROL BY PROVINCE FEATURE

System Makes Wines and Beers Cheap, and 'Hard Stuff' Too Costly for Most

Norman Hapgood, noted writer and editor, is now in Canada for the purpose of making a thorough survey of the workings of the liquor laws being tried out in five of the nine provinces there. In order to get a comprehensive knowledge of the situation he has associated with clergymen, government officials, newspaper men, business heads and even mixed with inebriates. The result of his investigations are told in a series of articles written for the Hearst newspapers, the second of which is printed here today.

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,
Universal Service Staff Correspondeent.

(Copyright, 1926, by Universal Service.)

Montreal, June 21.—The successful Quebec liquor system is often described as a system of permitting light wines and beer. Such a way of referring to it gives a false and unfortunate impression. Every kind of liquor is allowed, only the light is made cheap and convenient, the strong is made inconvenient and costly.

Moreover the system is entirely misrepresented if government operation is left out of the picture. Those attractive stores, looking like banks, to which you go to buy your wine or whiskey are not run by people who make any money out of selling you a bottle. The salesman has no desire to hang around after the official hour for closing. He is a civil service employe, with a salary, and a desire to get home, with almost no temptation to cheat and a practical certainty of seeing his finish if he breaks any rules.

ONLY LABEL FRAUD.

Selling government labels to those engaged in smuggling into the United States and the dry provinces is the only form of fraud that has been practiced by these Canadian government employes, and it was easily ended by changing to a label of which it was physically impossible to make such use.

The whole idea is wrong, if it is conceived as resting on compulsion. The amount of force is slight. The system rests on steady slight pressure and the growth of a habit that is generally satisfactory to the population. Any rule found to meet too much opposition and not to work in actual practice is dropped.

LIKE SANDWICH RULE.

Such a rule was the one revolving around our old friend the sandwich, famous in New York as a centre of the Raines law, that earlier attempt in New York State to lessen the evils of drink. The only drinks that can be bought here and drunk on the premises are beer and ale, and they must be drunk at tables, not at the bar. At first it was the rule that they must be made part of a meal, but the sandwich, doing duty for one customer after another, promptly appeared along with the

DANCE OF DEATH COSTS 6 LIVES

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., June 21 (A.P.).—The joyous Charleston which Arthur Tessier, fifteen, attempted in a rowboat yesterday proved to be a dance of death. Tessier, losing his balance and upsetting the boat, was drowned, with five companions, in St. Mary's River. Only one lad, Isaac Jonviceur, fifteen years old, was saved from the icy waters of the rapids where the boat capsized.

Three girls and four boys ranging in age from thirteen to sixteen, and all living in Canadian Sault Ste Marie, set out in the rowboat after they had attended an excursion boat dance. Tessier, who won the junior Charleston contest in Canadian Sault recently, was asked to show several of the steps which won him the prize, and while the others stamped their feet, sang and applauded, Tessier danced enthusiastically. But, at the foot of the rapids, he toppled and keeled into the whirling waters. Five others disappeared with him before help arrived.

WOMAN INVALID SAVED AT FIRE

An aged woman was carried to safety and a mother and her baby assisted to the street by patrolmen today when fire that destroyed a garage in the rear of a three-story tenement at No. 26 Clark street, Somerville, threatened the neighborhood.

Mrs. Teresa Fransosie, sixty-four, an invalid, was taken from the third floor at No. 26 Clark street by Patrolman Mackey. She was overcome with fright and smoke.

The family of William McCabe, consisting of his wife, baby and seventy-three-year-old father, James McCabe, were escorted from the second floor through smoke-filled stairway to the street.

The fire started in the garage shortly after Charles Oatley of No. 25 Clark street had put up his motorcycle for the night. The garage, three automobiles and the motorcycle were completely destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Caples and their two children, living on the street floor at No. 25 Clark street, were forced to flee in their night clothing.

The building was badly damaged and adjoining building at No. 28 Clark street damaged by fire and water.

RESCUER IS TOLD TO GO HIS WAY

Crew Refuse to Leave Burning Tug Kingfisher; Suspected of Rum-Running

The trouble with rescuing ships' crews at sea sometimes is that the crews don't want to be rescued, Captain H. W. Robinson of the Boston-New York boat New York revealed today in telling of the burning of the tug Kingfisher off New London early today.

It is a bit disconcerting, Captain Robinson declared, to go to a rescue and be told by the crew of the burning craft to "Go to the devil."

The place isn't even charted and no course is mapped out.

Twelve of the sixteen men in the Kingfisher crew were reported "rescued" from the burning tug between Race Rock and Little Gull Light, eight miles off New London, but the story of Captain Robinson put a different face on it.

Captain Robinson of the New York said he was headed for Boston when he sighted the burning Kingfisher and turned off his course to go to her aid.

When he pulled up near the tug, he said, he found the crew of sixteen in a long boat, watching the craft burn.

To his offer of assistance the captain received only a shower of abuse, he declared, and when he said he would aid in extinguishing the fire he was told to "mind your own damn business."

He did—by leaving the scene, radioing the New London naval base, bringing out Coast Guard patrols, and resuming his journey to Boston.

Members of the New York's crew declared the Kingfisher to be a boat long suspected of rum-running. Twelve of the tug crew were taken off later by the Coast Guard, but the captain, mate and two of the crew stayed on.

Later, when a submarine went out for the tug, she could not be found.

CHAPTER XII.

WHEN we decided that managers must employ all four Cohans or none, there wasn't any wild scramble to book the act, as theatres still wanted Josie alone. The best we could do was to book a week at Zipp's Casino in Brooklyn.

Zipp's was nothing more than an old-fashioned beer hall that charged admission and offered four or five specialty turns to entertain the "lager" drinkers. We accepted this engagement with the hope that Hyde and Behman, the big Brooklyn managers, would drop in to see the act and engage us for their Adams Street Theater. It was the ambition of every variety act in those days to play Hyde and Behman's Adams Street Theater.

In reply to a letter sent to them, asking if they would be kind enough to look us over with a view to fu-

"The Best Suit I Have Ever Worn"

Here's the story as near as we can repeat it—"I dropped into Scott's to buy a suit—told the salesman the size—slipped into the coat. Then I asked him what he thought of it. He said: 'I think you have been wearing clothes at least a size too large.' 'All right,' I said, 'you show me a suit that's right.' He sold me the suit I am now wearing, and say, it is the best suit I have ever worn."

Scott's suits, custom-made in our Boston workrooms, yet ready to wear—are moderate in price because of our one profit system—$60 to $85.

HUNTER WINS TWO N. Y. TENNIS TITLES

New York, June 21.—Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle is the new Metropolitan clay court champion in both singles and doubles. He won them at the New York Tennis Club in decisive fashion, with some slight help from Dr. George King in the doubles event.

Percy L. Kynaston, his opponent in the singles final, never took a worse thrashing than the Olympic star gave him. Not until fifteen games had gone to the credit of Hunter was the Long Island star able to get a game. The score was 6—0, 6—0, 6—4.

In the doubles match which followed, Hunter also showed better than his partner, and he needed to do it, as their opponents, Edward T. Feibelman and J. H. Steinkamps, New Jersey champions, were playing good tennis, as the score, 9—7, 8—6, 6—2, shows.

HARVARD GETS LAST TIME TRIAL

Red Top, Ct., June 21 (A.P.).—Light work was the order for Harvard crews in their morning practice today and all four crews paddled down to the submarine base and back. There will be no more time trials, as Coach Haines has expressed himself as satisfied with the varsity crew as it now stands. The time trial of Saturday was regarded here as a good test. Two of the timers caught the time at 19:46 and the head coach at 19:50, which time was given out, although today the figure of 19:48 was accepted as a compromise. It was understood that the Yale varsity crew, which rowed fifteen minutes after the Harvard crew, made the distance in 19:47.

ROYALTY SEES FRENCH ACE DEFEATED

By F. A. WRAY,
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

Wimbledon, June 21.—Mlle. Lenglen had a sip of defeat today. Playing in a one-set exhibition doubles match at the opening of the Wimbledon tournament, before the King and Queen, Mlle. Lenglen and her partner, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, were defeated by Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree and Miss K. Bouman, the Dutch champion, 8-6.

Miss Bouman was finally sent in to play with Mrs. Godfree after Senorita de Alvarez and Miss Collyer were both unable to partner the English star.

There was nothing at stake and all the players went all the way out. Mlle. Lenglen, after playing some brilliant shots, overstretched her spectacular style in the last two games of the set and continually sent her drives out of bounds to lose the match.

D. Stralem of New York was knocked out of the tournament in the first round today when he was defeated by H. Timmer of Holland, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1.

When Miss Bouman and Mrs. Godfree ran out the set they received an ovation from the crowd. The players, who took the exhibition entirely as a friendly affair tripped off the court at the end gayly.

At the conclusion of the exhibition match their majesties left their box.

Lord Cholmondeley defeated F. Bryans, 6—1, 6—2, 6—1. O. G. N. Turnbull defeated George R. O. Crole-Rees, 6—3, 6—3, 6—2.

Jacques Brugnon of France defeated Nicholas Mishu of Rumania, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2, 6—1.

Vincent Richards encountered little difficulty in defeating A. F. Yencken, a member of the British Foreign office, 6—0, 6—0, 6—0 in an early singles match.

Count Salm-Hoogstraeten failed to appear for his match with C. Bryan of Holland.

Baron Von Kehrling of Hungary defeated Paul Feret of France, 7—5, 6—1, 2—6, 6—3.

The match between Von Kehrling and Feret was one of evenly matched players and the Hungarian won by a closer margin than the score indicates. Feret, who is now the third ranking player of France, put up a fine game but was overcome by the Baron's powerful driving and hard smashing.

I buy their stock from Harry Frieze & Co. for about one-quarter of the cost of same. Worsted Suitings, fine woolens, wonderful Knitted Fabrics, and a wonderful variety of colorings such as a high-priced ready-made manufacturer would use to cut up into Suits and Overcoats to sell retail from $35 to $50. I know the season is not right for Overcoatings, but when you take Wanskuck Whitney Weave Overcoatings, high-grade American Woolen Co. Runyon Says:

Mr. Cox Makes Discovery.
Finds Out About Farmers.
Insight Into Their Lives.
Learns from "Farmer Joe."
They Get Up Very Early.

—By Damon Runyon—

(Copyright, 1926, by International Features Service.)

MY friend, Mr. Broadway Johnny Cox has recently made some astonishing discoveries regarding a pursuit hitherto quite unknown to Mr. Broadway Johnny Cox. He is in a state of intense surprise, as he hastens to apprise me of his findings.

Damon Runyon

Mr. Broadway Johnny Cox is an urban fellow, indigenous to city streets and asphalt pavements and electric lights and kitchenette apartments and tall buildings and all that sort of thing. He is a slimish chap, young, easy mannered, affable, and loquacious, and he is by way of being connected with The Manly Art of Scrambling Ears.

Mr. Broadway Johnny Cox is sometimes a manager of boxers, sometimes a promoter, and sometimes an accomplice to promoters. He was publicity man for the ill-fated venture of the luckless Mr. Jess Baugh in trying to present a fight between Young Stribling and Gene Tunney at Miami. Then Mr. Cox associated himself with Mr. "Pa" Stribling, and was among those present in Young Stribling's corner the night of that thing with Paul Berlenbach.

IN his goings to and fro about the land, Mr. Broadway Johnny Cox has stuck mainly to boulevards and avenues. A city chap with oily voice and silky ways, he had no knowledge or even any suspicion of the country.

I presume Mr. Cox had heard of farmers, but I rather imagine he thought they were merely something to be buncoed by city slickers. It is a sure thing that he had no idea of what a farmer really is, because it is of this matter that he writes me in great excitement.

It seems that Mr. Cox has acquired a new fighter, "Farmer Joe" Cooper by name, a welterweight, who must be a good fighter if he is only one third of what Mr. Cox says of him, but who is not to be confused with "Lefty" Joe Cooper, the Pacific Coast welterweight. I made the mistake of mentioning that Mickey Walker had knocked out one Joe Cooper, without specifying that it was "Lefty" Joe Cooper and Mr. Cox wired that "Farmer Joe" was so depressed he threatened he would never again read my column.

As I gather, Mr. Cox accepted "Farmer Joe" Cooper without troubling himself to inquire into the name. Names never trouble Mr. Cox much, anyway. But once recently it appears Mr. Cox asked "Farmer Joe" why he was called Farmer, and "Farmer Joe" said it was because he is a farmer.

"SAY Damon, do you know what a farmer does?" asks Mr. Cox, little realizing that he is addressing one whose middle name could be farmer. "Well, I'll tell you what a farmer does. My fighter, Farmer Joe Cooper, has been telling me. Maybe he is lying some here and there, but he looks me right in the eye when he is telling me and give me a man who looks you right in the eye, even if he is a farmer.

"Say, Damon, a farmer gets out of bed at 4 o'clock in the morning, no matter what happens. Yes, I mean in the morning, I asked my fighter, Farmer Joe Cooper, three or four times about this to make sure he did not mean afternoon, but he swears it is morning. It don't sound reasonable, but Farmer Joe looks me right in the eye when he is telling me.

"After a farmer gets up he goes and gets milk off of a lot of cows. These cows are sometimes very mean cows and kick at a farmer, who says so-bossy, or clouts them, to make them hold still. Then after he gets the milk off of all these cows, a farmer goes and hitches up his horses to plows and so-forth, and takes them out to the fields, and plows around all day.

"Say, Damon, sometimes a farmer pitches hay instead of plowing. He has what is called a pitchfork and with which he picks up the hay and pitches it onto a wagon which takes it to town and sells it to somebody that wants hay."

"I WILL talk to Farmer Joe Cooper again, and get some more dope about the farmer racket from him which you can put in your column because I will bet a lot of your readers have no idea what a farmer does. They probably think they are just farmers.

"Say, Damon, that racket would be no good for me, would it, especially the getting up at 4 o'clock in the morning? Maybe I better ask my fighter, Farmer Joe Cooper, a little more about that and make sure he means morning. It does not sound reasonable, does it?

"Well, good luck. I wish you would say my fighter, Farmer Joe Cooper, can knock anybody in the world dead. Maybe he cannot, [illegible] there is [illegible] harm in saying it, is there?"

Champ's Future Hinges on Rickard's Action

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, June 21. Unless the silence on the Wills challenge is broken by tomorrow—and the [illegible] will [illegible] to [illegible] against it, Jack Dempsey either will be read out of his title or [illegible] suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission. This [illegible] was forecast today by Chairman James A. Farley, 24 hours in advance of Tex Rickard's oft postponed visit to the commission with his Dempsey program for 1926.

This rendezvous or its subsequent developments will determine whether Rickard or the commission is running boxing in this State. That Rickard will keep the date after giving it a successful run around for some weeks seems to be ordained by the fact that tomorrow also marks the dead line set by the board for Dempsey to come to the line on the Wills issue.

Farley declined to anticipate the nature of the action that will result when Dempsey turns up missing again, either in person, which is geographically impossible, or by proxy. However, it was pointed out to the chairman that a mere suspension would defeat his repeated aim, a Dempsey-Wills match for the heavyweight title, and he agreed.

The only logical decision, therefore, would declare the heavyweight title vacated and a match between Harry Wills and Gene Tunney ordered with the championship going to the winner. If Farley wishes to go that far, he can do so for, in addition to his own vote, he [illegible] a [illegible] from the votes of Messrs. [illegible] and Wear, members of [illegible].

In addition, the [illegible] of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts [illegible] connection [illegible] are [illegible] by agreement [illegible] with [illegible].

All that will be necessary, after that, will be to [illegible] a Wills-Tunney match and [illegible] that it cannot be [illegible] both Dempsey and [illegible] and if they won't [illegible] here he will pack his [illegible] and go to Jersey [illegible].

Knowing that Tunney will have no part of the [illegible] program and that he [illegible] will be just as badly off as he was before, it will have Harry Wills [illegible] and no logical opponent [illegible] the latter is more necessary to the success of the project than Wills is, for the colored one cannot be given the title by acclamation.

Hope Grips Harvard as Yale Series Opens

By TED LYNCH

With the scalp of the Big Green Indian hanging on his belt, John Harvard left the Hub this morning bound for New Haven, where he will encounter a menacing Eli pup tomorrow. John was a little [illegible] this morning because of the Dartmouth victory and was almost certain of a victory over his ancient rival.

When Coach Fred Mitchell led his Crimson ball tossers in that Saturday victory over Dartmouth the Harvard mentor gave Crimson followers some encouragement with the Yale series in view.

By Ted Lynch

Dartmouth came to the Soldiers Field diamond as a real college ball club with Harvard as the decided underdog. Dartmouth left with its reputation only slightly marred, but Harvard came out of the battle as a real ball team.

Tomorrow the Harvard nine will meet a strong Eli nine. Fred Mitchell used his premier twirler, Jack Barbee, against Dartmouth and the name of the starting Crimson hurler is a mystery. Mitchell had some good reason in using Barbee against the Big Green and he has confidence in using any of his other twirlers against old Eli. Roy Booth, Frank Cutts and Ben Pfaffer will be ready for action [illegible] will be available for the second game of the series here on Wednesday.

Yale twirling has been nothing to write home about of late and the Harvard batters are well aware of the fact. With any kind of a break from the hurling corps the Harvard nine should make tomorrow's game an interesting battle.

Under the leadership of Coach Mitchell and Manager Davidson Sommers the Harvard nine [illegible] out on the 10 o'clock train this morning and will arrive at Choate School [illegible] this afternoon. Mitchell intends to hold a short evening workout today with another workout tomorrow morning. The team will board the train for Boston immediately after the game.

Big Crews Work at Poughkeepsie

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 21 (I.N.S.)—This busy little rowing colony will get its first view of some of the big timers today when Washington and the Navy, favorites for the varsity championship race on June 28, will take the water here for the first time this season. Cornell, which defeated California at Ithaca, was scheduled to arrive today and probably will go out for a spin this afternoon.

Cornell's appearance on the scene will round out the list of eight starters, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, California and Wisconsin having been on the ground for some days.

The Dawn of a Better Cigarette

55 inches of the world's finest cigarette enjoyment ~

THE world moves. This year's motor car is better than last year's. There were good radio sets on the market three years ago—but they can't keep company with the sets they're making today.

The inventor, the scientist, or the chemist who begins his work today—builds on the discoveries of yesterday and improves on them.

For many years there have been a number of good popular-priced cigarette brands on the market.

But when Lorillard started to create and perfect a new 15c cigarette it had the advantage of all that had been done before—plus its own resources for improving on the old standards.

So OLD GOLD represents a super-cigarette. It embodies all the merits of the old—with new refinements in taste, in delicacy of aroma, in smoothness and mildness—which new-day science and modern resources have perfected.

There are 55 inches of the world's finest cigarette enjoyment in one package of OLD GOLDS. Try one—and you're won.

BELIEVE IN LUCK?

"LUCK," wrote Max O'Rell, "means the hardships and privations you have not hesitated to endure; the long nights you have devoted to work. Luck means the appointments you have never failed to keep; the trains you have never failed to catch."

There is much in those words. Many bits of good fortune we attribute to "luck" are the result of character and personality.

Yet there is more to it even than that. There IS something, some force that guides one into opportunity and another into disaster apparently through no virtue or fault of self. Sometimes one cannot help feeling that one is born under a lucky or an unlucky star.

"Under a lucky star" was not first said at random. Those who can read the stars can cast your horoscope and tell you astonishing things about yourself, your character and your destiny. Happily, they all agree that it DOES lie in our hands to improve our fates if we are strong enough to purpose.

Curiously, I received the other day a paper from America [illegible] from one who, having read the horoscope of Carol, my eldest son, let me know that he was not entirely responsible for his actions, as the constellations had been unfavorably placed at his birth, especially for his marriage—that the stars had been against him!

No doubt if he had been of sufficiently steadfast will and if God had really lived in his heart Carol would have had the courage and strength to fight adverse influences. But this strength was not his, and he succumbed to temptations too mighty for him.

Yes, there is surely something in the "lucky" or "unlucky" star.

My country, even my family, like to imagine that I am lucky. Someone once asked if I believed in luck. "Indeed I do," I answered. "I believe in my luck, but let me tell you this—that I always meet it half-way. When I see it coming toward me, I do not remain sitting; I hurry towards it!"

"There is no question that 'there is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will,' and equally no question that we must not leave to the 'stars' our destiny, but bring to bear every ounce of character we can cultivate to help forward the influence of our 'lucky stars' and fend off the effects of our 'unlucky' ones.

"Character is destiny," as I have often quoted. Our characters, our [illegible], mould our [illegible]. If [illegible] melancholy we attract melancholy and misfortune to us.

If we conceive of ourselves as martyrs, life offers us a thousand occasions to be martyred! Happiness is also offered by life—or at least happy moments, out of which success can come if we will only grasp our chances.

We must have a WILL towards happiness or success. Otherwise we make ourselves immune to it.

Luck is good to have, but unless backed up by character and effort it is not to be depended on.

The Making of a Husband, Ann Lisle's Clever Serial

I had been trying to figure out how I could make him feel that I understood him—and trust him [illegible] how I could work out the problem of making Jim feel complete confidence [illegible] that [illegible] and [illegible] where he is going. All I could think of was that he does things he wants to hide from me. It is a pernicious circle we have been going around in for a long time—[illegible] I began to travel in that circle.

I remembered that Jim had given vent to a few disjointed exclamations [illegible] Arlette [illegible] in his low voice, "I suppose Patty [illegible] Altogether too soon [illegible] Can't they wait?"

Adding this to what Jim had told me about taking Arlette to the "great vocal teacher," Diane Per[illegible] see that he is still interested in the work into which he drifted through Matt Hawley [illegible] interest in Brooke De Courcey and in refusing to give Hawley an explanation of [illegible] connections.

Jim had said when I let him realize that I was worried over [illegible] Arlette.

"To think you can be jealous again—and of that baby!" Jim had actually groaned.

We didn't learn until then that the Hyde and Behman management had a set rule never to play an act that had appeared at any other Brooklyn variety house. We were brokenhearted when we discovered this fact. We had foolishly, but innocently, made the mistake. It didn't turn out to be a fatal mistake, however, as you will learn later on.

During the week at Zipp's, old George Huber, the manager, who had heard about the letter we had received from Hyde and Behman, came to us and said: "I want you folks to understand [illegible] is open to you any [illegible] to have [illegible] if you care to, [illegible] too, if you [illegible] you please, but [illegible]

We realized that there was little or no chance for us in the East, but we were bent on sticking to our guns and the "four act," so we jumped to the Middle West and played the Moore Circuit of Museums. CHAPTER XXIII

July 30th

I HAVE today borrowed some of Mrs. Livingstone's books on psychic research, and intend to go into them thoroughly. If there is any proof in a mass of evidence, it is certainly here.

On the other hand, one must remember that the hope of survival is the strongest desire of the human heart. How many, if they felt that this life was all, would care to go on with it?

Analyzing my last night's experience however, I can find nothing in my mind to [illegible] I went to sleep [illegible] [illegible] the night was [illegible] [illegible] my last waking [illegible] [illegible] except when [illegible]

[illegible]

Professor in Horror

I saw nothing, but I had the sensation [illegible] they watched [illegible] [illegible] came a rush of air [illegible] room, a curtain billowed [illegible] face and the door [illegible] swing open. Then [illegible] was [illegible] save for a low white [illegible] side in the hall.

How much of this today [illegible] to my nerves I do not know. [illegible] doubtedly Jane's nervousness had affected [illegible] equally undoubtedly bed clothing has a tendency to slip from a couch. I have quietly experimented today. A gale of wind would blow out a curtain and open an unlatched door.

On the other hand, I am as certain today as I [illegible] of anything recently, that I had bolted the door when I entered the room. But is was not bolted in the morning.

Greenough continues his work, handicapped by the usual difficulty besetting a detective in the [illegible] that his every move is known and watched.

We have had, however, a development of our own, and this from Edith!

It appears that this morning, seeing Doctor Hayward pass on his round of morning calls, she went to his office and, on his housekeeper reporting him out, asked permission to go into his office and there leave him a note.

"A note?" I inquired. "What sort of a note?"

"Any sort of note," said Edith. "As it happens I asked him to tea tomorrow. It was all I could think of."

But what she really did was to type a few lines on his typewriter and tear the paper out.

Boat Is Found

(As a matter of [illegible] performa[illegible] me that the paper [illegible] [illegible]

If we are to believe that the chalk which marked [illegible] in that paper we must grant that the doctor did not mark the car. Or [illegible] [illegible] to be launched as [illegible] rather ingenuously in our [illegible])

July 31st

Halliday has found the boat.

At least he has found a boat which answers Jane's description. Today he took me to see it.

[illegible] small creek [illegible] tends through the marsh half a mile north of the boathouse, and just beyond Robinson's Point.

(Note: This creek is really a narrow estuary from the bay, almost entirely overgrown and its entrance hidden by reeds, and is only a few hundred feet in length. At its upper end, where the boat lay, the swamp ends and woodland commences. Although on another estate the wood land is a continuation of our own.)

The boat, evidently an old and abandoned one, gives some evidence of recent use. That is, although it contains some water there is very little, whereas as Halliday says after the recent rains it might well [illegible]

The oarlocks are wrapped with [illegible] [illegible] or the boat [illegible] [illegible] fully hidden in the marsh. Halliday located them but left them as they were, but with his pen-knife he cut [illegible] small bit of the muffling [illegible] for later possible identification.

During the search for the Morrison girl [illegible] this boat was [illegible] and examined, there are [illegible] prints on the bank [illegible] prevent any clue [illegible] among them. But [illegible] of an entirely [illegible] so remote a location, [illegible] light house in sight [illegible] considerable distance

[illegible] was in this boat Halliday [illegible] the murderer fled [illegible] [illegible] him, and from [illegible] climbed into [illegible] and attacked him [illegible] examined it.

We made rather ostentatious [illegible] to go fishing. Halliday [illegible] hopelessly entangled in coils [illegible]

[illegible] abandoned [illegible]

The mouth of the creek was well [illegible] with water weeds, but we poled the boat through them and over a shoal, into the deeper water beyond. Then, with a look around, we settled to the oars again.

Had Greenough been [illegible] have had some basis for his [illegible]

Case Summed Up

[illegible] Halliday's [illegible] discovery [illegible] at on [illegible] of the girl's murder she [illegible] in the truck to the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] he left me [illegible] from [illegible] the wood [illegible] and started through it toward [illegible]

In a [illegible] or so he came back [illegible] and reported that he had [illegible] the track of wheels driven through the woods and that in one place a barbed wire fence had been taken down and boards [illegible] over it to permit the passage of a car across it.

[illegible] I imagine fair pre[illegible] evidence, although it [illegible] is no nearer the identity of [illegible] than we were before.

[illegible] however, may be valuable [illegible] Edith who knows a number of unsuspected housewifely things, [illegible] that the strips which [illegible] the oarlocks are of a fine [illegible] of material.

"Look for somebody," she says, "who uses linen sheets on his bed and doesn't care that they cost twenty-five dollars a pair nowadays."

From which I gather, among other things, that our little Edith has been pricing the equipment of a home. . . .

[illegible] that old sea-chest which [illegible] [illegible] to occupy [illegible] Summer, and [illegible] used chiefly [illegible] on windy days, the old sea-chest contains to date the four clues which are our [illegible] ammunition in the putative ex[illegible] against Greenough. They are:

(a) Half of a broken lens from a [illegible] of eyeglasses.

(b) A scrap of paper, containing [illegible] of typing in large and small letters.

(c) The small cap of an ether can.

(d) A fragment of white cloth.

Had it not been for Halliday's unwitting [illegible] placing a weapon in the enemy's hands we should also have had

(e) A very sharp knife, with a plain wooden handle and a blade approximately six inches long.

Must a Girl Pet to Be Popular? -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

"We Won't Pet, So We're Lonely"

Don't Yield to Gain a Friend

Be Modern and Still Have Ideals

Encourage the Shy Young Man

[illegible] from Diana [illegible] [illegible] expressed the [illegible] we don't neck."

Dear Miss Fairfax: [illegible] "I am wild about the Three [illegible] are there such men? [illegible] oh, how [illegible] How I hate that! [illegible] I meet the right [illegible] sports that boys [illegible] I came this letter [illegible] Eleanor [illegible] Miss Fairfax, I've been [illegible] the [illegible] on this another of my many evenings of staying home because I refuse to pet.

[illegible] do.

"We are lonely because although we are quite modern, we object to promiscuous petting. And we want so much to meet the right sort of boys. Please help us!"

[illegible] articles [illegible] go to prove [illegible] who do not believe in promiscuous petting. So cheer up, girls!

"If a good-night kiss," writes "We Fit Good," "will gain or lose a friend, do not yield. If he is a young man who has your happiness at heart you will have gained a friend worth while and also a moral victory.

"The modern girl reasons: 'If we do not pet, we cannot be happy, because parties, popularity and young men will be unknown to us.' In this way the girl of today tries to engage the sympathy of the universe."

This is the answer: If your life's mate is idealized in your dreams as a man of character, romantic, kind and home-loving, then your presence at a petting party, your number of ringers and your popularity cannot be an essential factor in your happiness.

Any girl who expects some day to marry a REAL MAN, one who [illegible] honorable and really [illegible] for love and a character that is worthy of that type of man.

The price of self-respect, the respect of fine men and the chance to finally win the enduring love of The Man, is high. It includes refusing cheap popularity and vulgar [illegible] times.

Try to choose your friends among men, with careful discernment. Encourage the man, even if he is a little shy, slow and plain looking, who measures up to your standard in character and courtesy.

"The very idea of your letting someone you never saw [illegible] bring you home in his automobile!" Moms' voice rose high and indignant.

Merry sat down on the [illegible] of her bed and began to [illegible] her clothes. Sometimes [illegible] Moms began to scold she kept [illegible] a very long time and Merry was sleepy and wanted to [illegible]

She tried to shut [illegible] to the sound of Mom's high pitched voice.

"Why did you do it?" [illegible] thing she heard her say [illegible] long flow of angry words. "Why did you do such a dangerous and dreadful thing? You knew it was wrong, didn't you?"

"I knew what was wrong?" Merry asked.

[illegible] "His name's Gray—[illegible]. He's a lawyer. Cassie knows [illegible]. You can ask her about him in the morning if you don't believe me!"

Moms stood a moment longer in the doorway, looking from one to the other of the girls. Then, with [illegible]

By the time she got down to breakfast Moms had cross-questioned Cassie [illegible] Man in Gray. And she was [illegible] for Merry.

[illegible] was Gray" she accused her as she sat down to her toast and coffee. "His name isn't Gray at all! It's Gaines! Cassie just remembered what it was and told me."

"Gray or Gaines—what difference does it make?" Merry asked with an indifferent shrug of her slim little shoulders. "I'll probably never see him again anyway."

She Meets Man Again

Moms snorted and set down her coffee spoon with a clatter. "Mum [illegible] from the way you were talking to him at the gate last night [illegible] you'd probably see him [illegible]" she said. "And if he ever [illegible] here [illegible] I shall [illegible] ask him what really happened [illegible] trying to get the truth out of [illegible] is like getting sugar out of a [illegible]"

That was an unpleasant fact.

From babyhood Merry had never stuck to the simple truth when she [illegible] a fib would do [illegible] in the [illegible] of an eyelash, that [illegible] And when she was [illegible] an untruth she looked as straightforward and innocent as a child. Her green eyes would open as wide as innocent flowers.

They were wide open and innocent now, as she looked at her mother. And Moms believed what she said. After all, Gray and Gaines were pretty much alike. It was easy to make a mistake about them.

The hands of the clock on the wall of the classroom seemed to stand still that morning.

But at last it was 12 o'clock, and Merry was free.

She fairly flew into the dressing room to powder her nose and put on her hat.

It was raining outside—a fine, warm drizzle like [illegible]

Through it Merry walked, as happy as if the sun were shining.

Half way to the corner, where Arlington street [illegible]

Merry came up behind him.

"Good morning, Mr. G[illegible]" she said and he swung around and caught both of her hands in his. He didn't say a word, but stood there looking at her and holding her hands, until she began to be nervous. She pulled her hands away, blushing and laughing.

"You'll have a crowd gathering around us if you do that much longer," she said, and they started away down the wet pavement towards the Common, side by side.

THE CAT WOMAN

By Louise Peple Armstrong

"No doubt she is," said Tom dry[illegible]. "I've heard ugly stories about her [illegible]. Now, will you stop chopping at those weeds and let me take [illegible] shot?"

[illegible] grinned. "Business of holding my breath," she teased, "while my lord and master makes his famous drive!"

Later in the afternoon she saw Mrs. FitzSimmons sitting alone upon the Club House verandah. She was dressed in a green silk gown which brought out the lights in her Titian hair. A single emerald in an intricate setting gleamed upon her slim, white fingers. She did not appear to sense her solitude, but her great tawny eyes, which were most striking [illegible] sunset [illegible] of [illegible]

There lay the big shiny limousine in the ditch, and Mrs. FitzSimmons, who had been driving it, hunched limply over the wheel, her face white and drawn.

"If I can only drag her out by myself!" thought Dolly fearfully. "And I'll have to dash water in her face [illegible] she does [illegible] at the [illegible] to gather [illegible] into her strong young [illegible]

Finally she set the cup down with a sigh, staring about the cheerful little room, its windows framed in gay cretonnes, cool grass rugs upon the polished floors, which were Dolly's pride.

"How sweet it all looks," she said at last. "And you," she turned to Dolly, "how you fit into the picture." At the last words, her deep voice suddenly broke, and she closed her eyes. But she opened them again and looked at the girl. They were hard and cold now.

"Is anything the matter," asked Dolly uneasily.

"Nothing," said the woman. "Only the sight of you here brought back a memory." And in the warm morning sunlight, she drew her silken cape about her and shivered.

"You're a stranger here," said Dolly pleasantly. "I hope you like our town."

"It's a good little place, dear," the woman said. "So old-fashioned and quaint that at first it made me laugh—now it makes me sad. I shall leave as soon as I can! I'm an actress you know—you didn't. Well, my nerves went to pieces at the end of the season. Too much gayety, late hours—bad habits. So I came here for solitude." She paused a moment in thought. "I got it," she said finally in a cold voice.

"Oh, I'm so sorry you think us snobbish!" cried Dolly impulsively.

The woman laid her hand kindly upon the girl's arm. "Not yours, my dear. I'm an interloper in your world. Once I might have fitted, but now I could never get back to it. Back to it—how queer that I should be wishing to! But seeing you here!" She broke off then, turned and stared at Dolly with a [illegible] in her great eyes. "Listen," she said solemnly, "take a little advice from one who has been through the mill—perhaps you may need it, girl! Don't let [illegible] ment enter here—ever!" She made no [illegible] but her great tawny eyes [illegible] to embrace the little [illegible] "Once I had a [illegible] this home! [illegible] I ran away from it [illegible] Do you understand [illegible]?" She arose and drew the [illegible] coat about her. "I'm going [illegible] thanks, but I can walk the little way into town. I feel all right now. And good-bye—I'm leaving tomorrow!" She took Dolly's hand and clasped it warmly.

"What a lovely ring," exclaimed the girl enviously.

"You like jewels?" There was a [illegible] note in the woman's voice. "Then listen—I have a great many. But when I get back to the hotel I'll send you something I prize most in all the world. I'm going to give it to you, that you may never forget and because of—of your sympathy and the memories you have brought back to me, my dear." And she turned her head abruptly. "Good bye," she repeated, and Dolly watched her tall figure pass through the little gate and up the road with never a backward glance.

"Here's a package someone left at the office for you," said Tom Winston that evening to his wife. [illegible] took the little tissue wrapped package in her hands and began ex[illegible] to unwrap it. "It's a gift, Tom! From that Mrs. FitzSimmons [illegible] her cat[illegible]"

"You cannot accept a thing from that woman." Her big husband's voice was stern and wholly uncompromising.

"But Tom, she said—oh!" Tom started at his wife, for in her hands she held a baby's worn white kid shoe laced up with little cords of red. There were tears in Dolly's eyes.

"She said that she was giving me what she prized most in the world! Poor, poor woman. Of course I'll keep it! She gave it to me that I might not forget [illegible]. I never shall!" Dolly was in her husband's arms now, sobbing against his coat. "You must never say [illegible] mean things about her [illegible] lovely cat woman," sobbed Dolly.

"No," promised Tom gently as he hugged her tightly. "I never shall!"

ELLA CINDERS

What About It?

By BILL CONSELMAN and CHARLIE PLUMB

DEAR ROMANCE!
It comes to all of us—it has come to Ella! She and Sidney Smoothe are now engaged—REALLY engaged! By the way, how much do we know of Sidney? Let's refresh our memories—
ELLA FIRST SAW HIM IN A CAVE WITH A GANG OF BOOTLEGGERS—
—THEN HE WAS INJURED IN AN AUTO SMASH-UP—
—ELLA TOOK HIM INTO MRS. BEVENS'S HOME AND NURSED HIM. HE TOLD HER HE WAS RICH, A PLAYMATE OF THE PRINCE, AND WHEN SHE ACCUSED HIM OF BEING A BOOTLEGGER, HE EXPLAINED THAT HE WAS ON A SECRET GOVERNMENT MISSION.
THEN HE DISAPPEARED, AND ELLA SAW NOTHING OF HIM UNTIL SHE HAD BECOME WEALTHY, WHEN SHE WAS AMAZED TO OBSERVE HIM AS A PROFESSIONAL STRONG MAN.
HE APPARENTLY DID NOT REMEMBER HER, BUT ONE DAY HE ANSWERED HER ADVERTISEMENT FOR A CHAUFFEUR. WHEN SHE RECALLED HERSELF TO HIM, HE EXPLAINED THAT THE ACCIDENT HAD MADE HIM LOSE HIS MEMORY. FROM THEN ON, ELLA AND HE BECAME RATHER CHUMMY.
ELLA'S STEPMOTHER HAD HER THROWN INTO A SANITARIUM. SIDNEY RESCUED HER, EARNING HER UNDYING GRATITUDE.
HE TOOK HER TO HIS LAWYER, AND STOOD BY HER THROUGH HER TRIAL FOR MENTAL INCOMPETENCE, AFTER WHICH HE BECAME HER FIANCE FOR LEGAL PURPOSES. THEN HE FELL IN LOVE WITH ELLA, AND SHE WITH HIM, FOR HE PROPOSED AND WAS ACCEPTED—NOT FOR LEGAL REASONS.
WHAT ABOUT IT, FRIENDS OF ELLA! SHOULD SHE MARRY THIS MAN, OR NOT? NOW IF EVER, SHE NEEDS ADVICE. IF YOU FEEL YOU KNOW WHAT SHE OUGHT TO DO, WRITE HER IN CARE OF THIS PAPER.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when millions of mosquitoes are starting out on their necking excursions.

THEY'RE waiting at all of the Summer resorts to greet you personally.

THOUSANDS of tourists will be bitten in the wide open spaces.

YOU can swat them all you like but it won't do any good. Mosquitoes this year are wearing bumpers.

SOME of them provided themselves with rubber heels so that they can walk up and down your chest without making any noise.

BUT others are so careful that they attack you in their stocking feet.

MOSQUITOES are very fussy. Once they find a nice juicy neck they like to spend the whole Summer on it.

IT'S foolish to change eating places in the middle of the season.

A ROSLINDALE woman says that one mosquito has lived off of her chin for three years.

HE had a hard job finding it last week because she had her face lifted.

HE found it all right but he had to fly higher.

HE said he wished she'd had it lowered so that he could reach it easier.

FOXY GRANDPA AND HIS INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY and I were in England and we had just seen part of the ruins of the wall which the Romans had built to keep the Picts and Scots out of England.

As we stood there I said:

"And the strange thing is, Bobby, that this wall didn't keep out the Picts and Scots any more than the Great Wall of China kept out the Mongols."

"Is there a big wall in China?" asked Bobby.

"The Great Wall of China," I replied, "is one of the sights of the world."

"Oh, please tell me about it," begged the boy.

As Bobby and I sat there on one of the stones which the old Romans, a couple of thousand years ago, put into their wall, I told him about another great wall on the opposite side of the earth.

"You remember, Bobby," I started, "about Confucius, the great teacher of China, who lived twenty-five centuries ago and whose books were the foundation of all learning in China throughout the centuries?"

"Yes, I remember," replied Bobby proudly.

"A few hundred years after the death of Confucius, a Prince of China came to the throne, and the first thing he did was to order the burning of all the books of Confucius. And those who tried to keep the books he punished cruelly.

"Now, as it happened, at this time great hordes of Mongolian horsemen were swooping down upon the country from the north devastating the crops and killing all who were in their path.

"So this Prince of China thought he would build a great wall to keep out these marauders, and I will tell you how it was built.

"The Emperor—for the Prince was now Emperor—thought that a good way to punish the offenders who tried to keep the books of Confucius would be to send them out into the desert wastes to build a great wall across the Northern part of his empire.

"So the wall was commenced and for hundreds of years, thousands and thousands of Chinamen worked at this great feat.

"The wall stands today thirty feet high—as high as many houses and fifteen wide at the top."

"Why, two automobiles could pass each other on that, couldn't they?" asked Bobby.

"They could," I replied, "and at certain distances there are great towers for defense, in which soldiers were stationed in olden times, ready to repel the attack of the invading Mongols.

"On and on runs this wall, up hill and down dale, up steep mountains and down through deep valleys, across broad rivers and great deserts.

"And the whole wall is beautifully faced with granite."

"My," said Bobby, "think of the work."

"Yes," said I, "and it was so perfectly built that it stands today. Nearly all tourists who go out to China make it a point to see this great monument of ancient times and all those who see it declare that it is worth a trip across the sea to see."

"I wonder how long it is," said Bobby.

"I'll tell you," I replied. "The great wall of China is fifteen hundred miles long."

"Whew!" gasped Bobby, "how far would that be in our country?"

"It would be just as if a wall were built from New York to Kansas City," I replied.

PRINCE VISITS GILLETTE CO.

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Last January when arrangements were being made for the visit of the Crown Prince of Sweden to the United States the Crown Prince expressed a keen desire that an inspection trip through the plant of the Gillette Safety Razor Co., at South Boston be scheduled in his itinerary. Accordingly, the officials of the Gillette Company extended an invitation to His Royal Highness which was immediately accepted.

On Saturday, accompanied by his staff, the Crown Prince visited the Gillette plant and spent considerable time in studying the various processes in the manufacture of Gillette razors and blades. Of especial interest to him was the blade end of the business, as only the finest of Swedish steels is used in the manufacture of Gillette blades. Last year the Gillette Company imported Swedish steel to the extent of 3,076,923 kroner, and as blade sales are constantly increasing this item was of especial interest to the Crown Prince. At the present time, pending the completion of two new factory buildings, the blade production is two million blades per day, or a trifle over one-half billion blades yearly, but upon the completion of new manufacturing units this production will be increased to 3,000,000 blades yearly, and the Crown Prince evinced amazement at this mammoth blade production.

The fact that there are four inspectors for every five operators in the Gillette plant also caused comment by His Royal Highness, and the ingenious machinery with which Gillette blades are manufactured was of extreme interest to him. The Crown Prince stated to Gillette officials that his trip through the Gillette factories was an outstanding event in his visit to the United States.

Central Union Trust Company of New York, Trustee.

The following information has been summarized from a letter to us from Mr. Geo. N. Tidd, Vice-President of The Ohio Power Company and President of American Gas and Electric Company:

THE COMPANY

The Ohio Power Company owns and operates large electric power and light generating plants and transmission and distributing systems in important manufacturing and mining sections of Ohio. Transmission and distributing lines owned, including properties about to be acquired, aggregate 3,468 miles, and supply electric power and light to 225 communities in a prosperous territory in Ohio, serving an estimated population of 719,000. The company's main power stations are located at Philo, Ohio, and Power (formerly Windsor), West Virginia. All the electric power and light properties owned (including those about to be acquired) by the company are interconnected by high voltage transmission lines, and this system in the State of Ohio is connected with the high voltage lines of other subsidiaries of American Gas and Electric Company. These interconnected high voltage lines extending into six states constitute one of the largest super-power systems in the world.

SECURITY

The First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds (of which $43,131,500 will be outstanding upon completion of the present financing) are secured by direct mortgage lien on the plants and properties of the company, valued at over $63,000,000, based on an appraisal made by Messrs. Ford, Bacon & Davis in 1921, with subsequent additions at cost. The mortgage is a first lien on the greater part of the company's property; on the remainder it is subject to $2,731,000 divisional bonds outstanding under closed mortgages. All these divisional lien bonds must be paid at maturity and not extended.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds of these Series D Bonds will be used to provide funds in connection with the purchase of important electric power and light properties in Ohio, to reimburse the company in part for capital expenditures already made under the terms of the mortgage, and for other corporate purposes.

EARNINGS

Gross and net revenues have steadily increased. During the three-year period ended April 30, 1926, as shown below, annual gross earnings of all properties owned, including those about to be acquired, increased $1,857,205, or over 14%, and total annual net revenue available for bond interest, after taxes, maintenance and depreciation charges, increased $1,048,552, or over 21%.

Twelve Months ended April 30	Gross Earnings	Total Net Revenue
1924	$12,646,083	$4,825,873
1925	13,267,280	5,203,385
1926	14,503,288	5,874,425

Annual interest charges on the First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds to be outstanding on completion of the present financing, including this issue of Series D Bonds, and on all underlying divisional bonds, amount to $2,539,480. The average of the annual net revenue, as shown above for the three years ended April 30, 1926, was equal to more than twice the amount of such interest charges.

CONTROL BY AMERICAN GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY

The entire common stock of The Ohio Power Company is owned by American Gas and Electric Company, which has paid dividends on its preferred and common stock without interruption for more than 15 years. The aggregate market value of the stock of American Gas and Electric Company is about $130,000,000 at current quotations.

The statements quoted above have been accepted by us as accurate but are in no event to be construed as representations by us.

We offer these bonds for delivery if, when and as issued and accepted by us, subject to approval of legal matters by counsel, and to approval of the issue of the bonds by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. It is expected that delivery in the form of temporary bonds of the company or interim receipts of Dillon, Read & Co. will be made on or about July 7, 1926.

HAPGOOD ON 'WET' PROBE

story that it soon became customary to furnish a sandwich made of rubber. The Canadians, not bothering about what was unessential, thereupon gave up the rule about having a meal in the beer-parlor and confined themselves to the rules that in such a place only beer and ale could be served and must be taken seated.

There is some dissatisfaction with the beer, the general idea being that it is not as good as in the old days, but a few dispute this.

At any rate, it is true, it cannot be charged to the new system, except that the new system has increased the demand for beer. The advertisements you read in the papers insist on the point that the beer or ale advertised is "full strength," thus trying to meet a prevailing criticism.

As to whiskey, there is a rule that is easily avoided by a private purchaser and is really aimed only at the person trying to get it for commercial purposes. But one bottle is sold at a time. It is easy to go from one store to another, or return to the same store, and thus collect as many as you need for private use. There are a few who wish to introduce the Swedish card system, being tried elsewhere in Canada, but not many. It is not a real issue.

Hotels cannot serve whiskey, but can serve wine. This rule is observed. It is no doubt possible to get a bottle of whiskey from a head waiter to take to your room, but that trivial degree of corruption does nothing except beat the rule about hours and resale to a wholly unimportant extent.

The people who want whiskey drink it. But they are subject to constant annoyance and extra cost, and every week large numbers of them slip over to the habit of taking wine at a restaurant or taking beer at what we should call a saloon. More than half of the price a man pays for a bottle of whiskey in Canada goes direct to the government as a tax charge.

progress comes of it. Nothing more common than the hallucination that we are thinking a new way. Nothing more rare than a thought really new.

OUR THOUGHT grows out of old thought as forests grow out of dead trees. An old thought surprises us; we think it new. The patent office is bothered by geniuses seeking to patent old ideas.

A real new thought is known by the unanimity with which it is rejected. When 10,000 can discuss new thought and not tear each other's hair, you may be sure the thought is old.

H. G. WELLS discusses marriage and asks, "Are you for or against abolishing it?" Wells thinks that marriage survives, largely because of what he calls "the impudent intolerance of our intellectually and morally discredited religious organizations."

MARRIAGE AND religion are both "fading out," according to Wells and others sincere, but not acquainted with the mind of man.

Marriage and religion are only starting. It took more than 100,000 years to cure men of cannibalism. It will take as long to cure them of promiscuity in family life, and of superstition, bigotry, cruelty and intolerance in religion. But there is plenty of time.

THIS WORLD will last more than one hundred million years longer, according to science. When Wells reappears, with a different shape and brain, say 100,000 years hence, a suggestion that marriage be abolished will sound as preposterous as a suggestion to restore cannibalism, torture of witnesses or burning alive for differences in religion.

The one-tenth of one per cent. that is good in man is religious and monogamous, and that tenth of one per cent. will grow to 100 per cent. with time.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART, in an article published yesterday, said a wise thing, to which rushing, nervous Americans should pay attention: "Preparing always to live, we wear ourselves out, and die before the time comes."

Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans plan their lives, work to get what the plan requires, then retire, and live for a while. In America we plan industriously. Every man will tell you what he will do and how he will live, by and by. Later you hear that he is dead—the plan never carried out.

But it is a good thing for the country, and for its men. They were made to work, not to plan a pleasant existence, and the country needs their work, not their leisure.

Plenty of time to retire, in Heaven, where no work is done.

IN A SHAM battle, above New York, our farcical air fleet did wonders, and the defenders won. They usually do win, in sham battles.

Some say: "We are rich, and can build as many airships as may be needed when the time comes. Why waste money on models that must soon be obsolete?"

Solon, wisest of the Seven, answered that question when Croesus proudly showed him his piles of gold: "Oh, King, if any other come that hath better iron than you, he will be master of all this gold."

If any nation comes flying east or west with better flying machines than ours, that nation will be master of all our gold.

WISCONSIN primaries will again let President Coolidge and the nation know what the voters think about the World Court. Senator Lenroot, who seeks renomination, was the leader of the World Court movement in the Senate. Watch what happens to him at the polls.

He is about to learn, as McKinley, Pepper, Stanfield and Cummins have learned, that when the country voted twice against the League of Nations, with 7,000,000 votes to spare, it did not mean "maybe." The World Court is the "maybe" of the League of Nations.

IT HAD BEEN announced that the President and Mr. Mellon planned no further reduction in Federal taxes for at least a year or two. But this country is rich; receipts seem to increase as taxes are lowered, and the June payments of income and other taxes are far beyond estimates. Uncle Sam will probably find himself with $500,000,000 more than he needs this year and able to cut taxes again.

How those figures will sound in Europe, and how earnestly Europeans will feel that we ought to enter the League of Nations, or at least the World Court, and give Europe a chance to dispose of that surplus.

GERMANY voted yesterday on the confiscation of hundreds of millions of royal property.

The former Kaiser says: "Republican Prussia is now assuming for herself the right of theft."

If that were so, Republican Prussia would only be imitating the Hohenzollerns of ancient days, before there was any Hohenzollern King or Kaiser.

YIDDISH TROUPE IN 'GHOSTS'

Ibsen's "Ghosts" was given a powerful presentation by the Yiddish Art Theatre Players at the Grand Opera House last night. In giving this play, which is the only one during the present run of the company that is familiar to non-Jews, the actors set forth their characterizations in a manner to put into the shade many a production of Ibsen's great social study.

The small cast was made up of uniformly fine actors. Even the long dreary stretches of propaganda dialogue in the first act could not serve to abscure very subtle acting on the part of the Jewish players.

Maurice Schwartz, who was cast as Alving, made a particularly effective entrance in this act. From then on, his acting increased in illusion, and he threw an almost apoplectic fit in the third act. His portrayal of the unfortunate artist was more than sincere; it was inspired.

Anna Appel made a very moving Mme. Alving, the mother of Oswald. Her gestures were expressive and well varied. Of the other parts, Abraham Teitelbaum was the Pastor, Isidore Cashier the old reprobate, Yacob Engstrand, and Anna Teitelbaum was the servant, Regina Engstrand. All rendered their parts with unusually clear diction.

WESTERN FILM AT FENWAY

Zane Grey's newest yarn of the great wide open spaces to reach the screen is "Born to the West," to be seen now at the Fenway.

In the film Jack Holt is the rugged, hard-riding hero who wins the heroine, Margaret Morris, at great odds and considerable gun play. As a humorous "buddy" to Holt, Raymond Hatton, who will be remembered as the teammate of Wallace Beery in "Behind the Front," does excellent work in comedy relief to the melodramatic struggle scenes.

Holt makes a splendid Zane Grey type. His fine horsemanship and sturdy physique stand him in good stead in this thrilling tale of "Colorado" Rudd. It tells of two boys who fought at school, marked each other for life and carried their scars and hatred through manhood. Together with "Born to the West," there is also shown "Ella Cinders," with Colleen Moore in the leading role.

Starting Wednesday, the bill changes and "Up in Mabel's Room," with Marie Prevost, and "The Dancer of Paris," with Dorothy MacKaill, will be shown.

SWEET DADDIES AT OLYMPIA

"Sweet Daddies," the new feature film comedy now playing at the Washington st. Olympia, boasts of an all star cast with such names as Charlie Murray, Irish comic; George Sidney, Hebrew character comedian, and Vera Gordon. In addition, the cast includes Jack Mulhall, Jobyna Ralston, formerly seen exclusively opposite Harold Lloyd; Gaston Glass and a smart group of dancing girls.

"Sweet Daddies" is a hilarious comedy with a particularly funny twist at the end. The big angles are the partnership between the jovial Irishman and the whimsical Hebrew, the romance between the son and daughter of the two, and the funny bootlegging theme—with the surprising ending. Alfred A. Santell, who directed Corinne Griffith in "Classified," is responsible for the direction.

On the stage is a pretty novelty presented by a company with an all Chinese cast. Billy "Swede" Hall & Company with Miss Jennie Colborn in an original sketch called "Hilda," is another bright act. Mr. Hall is noted for his Swedish characterizations. He has starred in such Swedish comedies as "The Girl from Sweden," "Yon Yonson," "Tillie Olson," etc. Other turns and short picture subjects complete the bill.

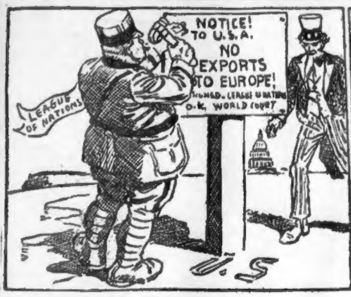
What World Court Will Do for Farm and Factory



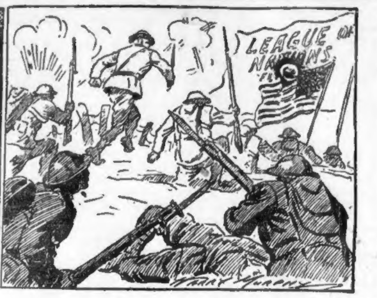
NOTICE! TO U.S.A. NO EXPORTS TO EUROPE!
(Signed) LEAGUE of NATIONS O.K. WORLD COURT
LEAGUE OF NATIONS
U.S

Embargo our exports.

Throw workmen out of jobs.

SORRY I CAN'T BUY YOUR GRAIN, EXPORT MARKET IS GONE!

Ruin prices for farmers.



Get us fighting in Europe again.

LOOK at this picture if you want to see what the World Court and its parent, the League of Nations, WILL ACTUALLY DO for the American farmer and the American workingman.

They have been told that if we only join the League and the League's Court, Europe will stay peaceful and busy and will buy lots of American farm and factory products, keeping our farmers prosperous and our workmen employed.

Every intelligent man knows that the League and the Court have NOT prevented wars. With the League and the Court in session, Greece has fought Turkey, Poland has fought Russia, Italy has fought Greece, and France has invaded Germany. France and Spain have fought the Riffians in Morocco, and French guns have been turned on the Syrians.

A press dispatch from London of March 21 told us what happened when the last meeting of the PEACE-LOVING League of Nations ended. What did they go home to do?

"GREECE has ordered 200,000 rifles from an Italian factory. RUSSIA is buying huge quantities of rifles, which she is reshipping to CHINA and PERSIA. JUGOSLAVIA is seeking 400,000 rifles, and FINLAND, POLAND and RUMANIA are making efforts to obtain rifles and machine guns. Orders from CHINA and TURKEY have flooded the German armament firms. The Swedish works of the German Junker Airplane Company are building a fleet of eighty fighting planes for TURKEY."

That's the way the League and the Court make peace in Europe. If we join, we will be mixed up in this kind of peace—RIFLES, MACHINE GUNS, FIGHTING AIRPLANES. If they get us over there, they'll have us fighting for them, and then paying for the whole war, JUST AS WE DID LAST TIME.

Look at the picture on the left once more. It is NOT IMAGINARY. The League of Nations asserts the right to levy embargoes to starve any country that opposes it; for example, any country that resists a decree of the World Court. If they declare an embargo against one European country, they will stop our exports to it and to all adjacent countries, lest anything leak through. You remember, that scheme was invented in the last European war.

If we have a judge on the World Court, WE CAN'T PROTEST. The law of the World Court is the Covenant of the League of Nations. The Court must declare and enforce the law, and that law, the Covenant, authorizes these embargoes.

THAT won't help the American farmer or the American workingman much, will it?

But there is more. The League also has the right to call for SOLDIERS to enforce the Court's decrees. If our judge on the World Court participates in decisions affecting the boundaries of Poland or Jugoslavia, won't they soon have our soldiers over there, fighting to enforce those decisions, along with the soldiers of England, France, Italy and Japan?

Let's stay home and mind our own business.

Pass Curtis-Aswell Bill, Relieving Both Farmer and Consumer

President Coolidge is right and Vice-President Dawes is wrong in the matter of legislation to give the farmers relief.

The farmers need relief. They are not rightly paid for their toil. They get, on an average, one-third of what the city buyer pays for farm products—grain, milk, eggs, vegetables and meat.

But the consumer needs relief, too. HE pays three times what the farmer gets. Statistics show that one-third the population of our congested cities are undernourished now. They cannot afford to pay MORE for their food.

The city population pays a FULL price for food. The farmer gets ONE-THIRD of that price, in heaven's name, who gets the rest?

The middlemen get it, the horde of wholesalers, jobbers, commission men, brokers, consignees, selling agents, forwarders, warehousers, factors, mixers, sorters, branders, exporters, receivers and what not.

B. F. Yoakum, one of the country's real agricultural experts, found through his investigations that the nation has 33,000,000 farm population and 19,500,000 food-dealer population. There are three people distributing food for every five producing it.

That's what's the matter with the farmer and with the rest of us. Bring us and the farmer together, free us from supporting ten or fifteen million unnecessary food handlers, and our problem is solved. We can pay less than we pay now and the farmer can be paid more than he receives now.

This is the idea of the Curtis-Aswell bill which President Coolidge is wisely supporting. The bill provides for a NATIONAL co-operative farm marketing organization to dispose of the farmer's crops, and it appropriates $10,000,000 of government money to support the organization until it gets on its feet.

The packer has shown the farmer how to make money out of handling one farm product, meat. The packer does not support any army of unnecessary camp followers eating up his profits. He has his own organization; nobody stands between him and the retail stores—not a soul.

Let's pass the Curtis-Aswell bill with its National Farm Marketing Association, its interstate zones and zone managers, its intelligent planning of production and grading, its private telegraph wires mediating between supply and demand, its elimination of middlemen.

Let's treat the disease.

We won't do that by the Haugen bill, advocated by Vice-President Dawes. The Haugen bill is frankly a price-boosting measure, the government and the farmers contributing to a fund to take food off the market and sell it abroad at any price it will bring. This is to go on until the price we pay for the remaining food in the country suits the price fixers.

Why boost the price when two-thirds of the price boost, we know, will go to the middlemen?

The Haugen bill should be entitled: "A bill for the perpetuation of parasite food handlers and the improvement of their condition."

Before turning to any such desperate and doubtful piece of legislation, let's have a big national co-operation and get together with the farmer. The great California co-operatives have shown how to cheapen fruit to the buyer and raise the price paid for it to the farmer.

The farmer is carrying a millstone round his neck. The Curtis-Aswell bill removes it. The Haugen bill gives them a "shot in the arm" and tells them to stagger on.

TRUE PROGRESS IN BOULDER DAM IDEA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT is difficult to realize the importance of the Boulder Dam project. If it be true that a man who has made two blades of grass grow where one grew before has been of benefit to humanity, certainly it would be of incalculable advantage to mankind to redeem many acres of waste land in the West.

Little by little what is called the Great American Desert has been disappearing before the encroachment of civilization. The completion of the Boulder Dam project will redeem many a square mile of waste land to arable soil. It will provide home sites for many people and be a source of power for many factories.

It is hoped that those who are engineering this project may be able to arrange satisfactorily all the demands of the various parties concerned.

The great problem of the West is water. Water means vegetation and it also means power.

As far as that is concerned, all over the United States we have not yet begun to realize the latent force of our waterpower. Doubtless the assistance of the Federal government will be necessary properly to take advantage of the many streams of water now running to waste.

When the Lord God made man the Scriptures say that He set him in a garden and give him the task of tending that garden. Man's greatest business ever since has been improving the soil, making it more productive.

Whatever tends to make a better garden out of this sublunary sphere is in line with the general purposes of mankind.

Better than conquering some other country and adding it to our national domain, better than taking the Philippines or Cuba or any other territory is to improve the territory which we now possess unquestionably. We have many thousand acres of unimproved land inside of the boundaries of the United States. To transform them into homesteads or lucrative farms is surely the worthy business of a government. It increases our revenues and makes better citizens. It is hard to imagine a business which is of more importance.

REASONS WHY YOU ARE NOT MORE POPULAR

You envy the popular person.

You are not jealous. You are willing that he should be popular but you are envious of the qualities that make that friend popular.

You wonder about this "personality" that seems to carry some men along so easily while your struggles for attention are unrewarded.

Perhaps all your life you have tried to please.

You have had strong convictions in certain directions, but because you wanted to be popular you have never dared to voice them.

Possibly you are too agreeable.

Everyone has more respect for a person who has opinions and who is not afraid to express them.

A few would disagree with your opinions. You might even make some enemies; but you also would make stronger friendships.

You cannot amount to anything worthwhile without making some enemies.

There is not much room for the wishy-washy person. Why be so agreeable and amiable that you represent nothing but good nature?

If you stood for something definite you might be more popular.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"A LOVER OF DECENCY" has sent me a cartoon. This cartoon is clipped from a newspaper.

It is a touching picture. It represents hundreds of little children marching in line, carrying banners upon which are these inscriptions:—"THERE ARE MILLIONS AND MILLIONS OF US, TOO YOUNG TO VOTE. IF LAWS ARE MADE FOR THE GOOD OF THE MANY PLEASE CONSIDER US"—"WE ARE THE ONES WHO SUFFER MOST WHEN LIQUOR IS SOLD. PLEASE PROTECT US"—"OUR MAMAS ARE HAPPY—SO ARE WE"—"OUR DADDIES HAVE MONEY IN THE BANK."

The cartoon which is a pictorial reply to the recent newspaper canvass on the prohibition question is headed—"WOULD YOU MODIFY THE DRY LAW? THINK OF US."

The newspaper which printed this cartoon is of unimpeachable standing. The man who drew that cartoon was doubtless inspired by the finest motives. And those who are circulating it are, beyond all question, sincere and well meaning. Yet there is a quality to such propaganda which is as vicious as any moonshine that ever blinded a poor wretch's eyes. That quality is INTOLERANCE.

This cartoon implies several things.

It implies in the first place, that this country is dry now and that modification of the dry law will cause liquor to be sold again after a blissful period of temperance and prosperity.

It implies that under the present condition little children and their mothers and fathers are supremely safe and happy and that the proposed modification threatens that safety and happiness.

Implies Hostility

It implies that all the people supporting the present "dry" law are devoted to the interests of little children and their home.

And it also implies, with most dramatic emphasis, that all those individuals guilty of violation of the prohibition law have not the interests of little children and their parents.

All this sounds beautiful and true. It is actually most malicious and false.

In the first place this country is NOT dry, and never has been.

The wetness of today hits not only at the health of our people. It hits at something which is even more important than the physical health of the individual. It hits at the respect of all citizens for their government. Our present wetness mocks our federal laws. It has broken down that powerful tradition which once made a federal law a thing to be respected, although every other law was broken. If you break down that tradition you let loose not only one evil, but a thousand evils. And that tradition HAS been broken down.

"I don't believe it!" cries A Lover of Decency. "I see nothing of the sort."

"There are none so blind as those who will not see," my friend. It is quite easy to escape proof of these facts. Naturally there is no open saloon on the corner of your block. Obviously YOUR children do not bring hip flasks home, nor are YOUR friends tipping you off to "a good joint." You, therefore, argue that since YOU do not come into contact with such things they don't exist. There is nothing admirable in that argument. It merely proves that you are more bent on proving your own point than on discovering the truth.

The "good joints" are there whether you see them or not. They underlie the life of every city and town like hidden rot. They are spoiling young lives and bringing old lives to disgrace.

IT ISN'T SO! I DON'T SEE IT.
ELSIE ROBINSON

The Real Patriot

AND IT IS BECAUSE OF THESE THINGS THAT MANY PEOPLE WANT A MODIFICATION OF THE PROHIBITION LAW.

You believe that those who voted for modification are allied with the bootleggers. Never was there a more ridiculous conclusion. THE MOST STAUNCH ADHERENTS OF THE PRESENT PROHIBITION LAW AND HOT CONTENDERS AGAINST CHANGE ARE BOOTLEGGERS. Never before in the history of our country has rum selling been such a popular and profitable sport as it is at present. We who know the underworld know that the dealers in illicit liquor voted dry to the last man!

It is not the rum seller who wants modification. It is the man whose interest in his country is so great that he will forgo his personal prejudice and face the truth. That is the man who is a real friend to children and a real patriot. But the man who allows his intolerance to blind himself and spread blindness to others is as truly an enemy to his country as the rum runner who casts the blight of physical blindness on his victim.

TELESCOPE VIEWS OF MOON WONDERFUL

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Why is the moon a 'dead world?' Why are men, and even astronomers, fearful of discord and calamity in a universe revolving in perfect harmony?"—J. A. B.

I DON'T know that the moon is "a dead world." That phrase is commonly used as meaning that the moon is not inhabited by creatures bearing more or less resemblance to those inhabiting the earth. But once it was thought possible, if not probable, that beings of the nature of men and women dwelt on the moon. Galileo apparently thought so when he first discerned with his telescope the mountains and plains of the lunar world.

That there was life on the moon remained the general opinion as long as the dark regions, which you can plainly see with the naked eye, continued to be regarded as seas. They retain the name seas, in the Latin form "maria," to the present day, and if we could only find water in them none of us would doubt the habitability of the moon.

No Atmosphere

But with the progress of astronomical observation it has been generally concluded that the moon possesses no perceptible atmosphere and no seas, lakes, ponds, rivers, streams or other bodies or currents of water, no rains, no clouds, no dew or any atmospheric moisture. It seems, to most observers, to be a desert of extreme aridity, where it would be hopeless to expect any kind of life.

Yet all are not of that opinion. Prof. William H. Pickering thinks something resembling vegetation grows on certain parts of the moon's surface, and he finds indications of gases and vapors emanating from the interior of the lunar globe. It is questioned whether all of the moon's innumerable "volcanoes" are absolutely inert.

Of course, however, a great volcanic eruption on the moon would present a spectacle easily visible from the earth, and nothing of that kind has been recorded within historic time. Anything of the nature of geologic action now occuring on the moon must be on an almost imperceptible scale for an observer on the earth.

Yet the face of the moon is scarred all over with the most wonderful marks of tremendous explosions and upheavals that occurred ages ago. For sensational telescopic views no astronomical object equals the moon, which is the easiest of all such objects to view. With a magnifying power of 50 to 100 diameters on a three-inch telescope the appearance of the lunar world is indescribably impressive. And the longer the observer gazes the stronger usually is his feeling that he is looking into a very earthenlike world; but the likeness concerns principally the roughly mountainous and desert regions of our globe.

The "seas" are bordered with steep, lofty mountain ranges and rows of gigantic circular "craters," while their bare, dark-hued beds are modulated with winding lines that recall reefs and offshore deposits in our oceans.

There is a beautiful strait between the "Sea of Showers," and the "Sea of Serenity," guarded on one side by the lunar "Caucasus" and on the other by the lunar "Alps," in looking at which, together with the curving shores of the two "maria" that it links together, the imagination almost persuades one that white-winged ships once sailed there, and fought the storm winds from the surrounding mountains, while cities gleamed along the now deserted coasts.

The "Bay of Rainbows" where now, alas, no iridescent showers ever paint the silent, cloudless sky with spectrum bows, is as elegant in outline as the "Bay of Naples," but several times broader.

Ghastly Ruin

Most of the southern part of the moon is a ghastly white ruin, interspersed with ring mountains in the form of immense craters, from which, as far as mere force is concerned, volcanic explosions might be thought to have hurled masses that actually reached the earth; for on the little moonworld the "velocity of escape" for projectiles is only about a mile and a half per second, instead of seven miles, as on earth.

As to your second question—what we call "discord and calamity" are evidently merely incidents of that same "perfect harmony" which you regard as characterizing the universe. Life and death, alternate destruction and creation are everywhere. A dead moon is no more an anomaly than a lifeless rock which may sometime be triturated into fertile soil.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WE teach the children day by day the things they need to know along Earth's strange and varied way as through the years they go. We set their feet, with patient care, upon the path of life; we fit them for the journey there, its mingled peace and strife. Into the endless quest of truth, of beauty and of good we lead the eager mind of youth, and show life's noblest mood. We teach, and yet our teachers, they, for ah! how much they bring of all things beautiful and gay to make our spirits sing! They lend humility and grace the while their laughter rings, they scatter joy upon Earth's face with love of simple things. Their innocence and artlessness can shame the cynic's sneer; they teach us more than words express the way of faith and cheer.
